Attempts to Fraternize Answered by Artillery; French Retain Ground

Great Artillery Battle In Progress In Galicia—Russians Hammering Austro-German Lines—French Resume Offensive And Succeed In Straightening Out Line Between Mont Haut And Mont Car-nillet—General Petain's Reply To Fruitless Attacks Of German Crown Prince—Italians Make Progress By Surprise Attack.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
Further checking of the latest wire from the German crown prince in Champagne, the French took the offensive and succeeded in straightening out their line in the region of Mont Haut and Mont Car-nillet. General Petain's men held to their gains, despite four strong attacks hurled against them, and which they repulsed with heavy loss.

Switching his attack from the operations of the front north of Alsace did not help the crown prince. His effort in Champagne west of Mont Car-nillet and southeast of Mont Car-nillet, as did his recent heavy attacks north of the Chemin-des-Dames. General Petain responded to the German effort by attempting and succeeding in reducing the salient in the front to the east of the scene of the Teuton attack. The French not only captured prisoners but beat off counter attacks, showing that the Germans attacked in vain.

On the rest of the French front, and especially around the curve in the French line northeast of Soissons, the artillery engagement was in progress. To the north the British and Germans have shown little infantry activity outside of patrol encounters and raids.

Switching his attack from the operations of the front where the Russians made their sudden advance early this week, near Zboroff, between Nochoff and Brzezany, in Galicia, the Russian and German guns are hammering the opposing lines, and near Smorgon, north of the Pripiet marshes, the big guns, too, are active. Signs of awakening activity in the front line in Poland are increasing and near Bialystok German attempts to fraternize with the Russians were answered by the artillery.

Northwest of Selo, on the Carso, an Italian surprise attack netted some gain of ground. Austrian counter attacks were beaten off successfully.

Fighting With Turks
Petrograd, July 6.—Russian troops and newly-reinforced Turkish detachments were engaged in battle in the Bistria region of the Persian-Mesopotamian frontier, says the official statement issued by the Russian war department today.

The statement reads: "In the direction of Sakko, in the region of Bistria and the river Abshirvan, our troops are engaged in battle with newly reinforced Turkish detachments. On the rest of the front there were no changes. "Western (Russian) front: In the direction of Zlochoff there has been increased artillery activity on both sides.

"Northwest of Rybniki, near Dzikav, there were a number of brief, sharp encounters between our detachments and the enemy. The enemy's artillery conducted an intense fire against our positions east of Lipnicadolina. Fusillades were repulsed on the crest of the mountain.

Fraternizing Is Ended
"Roumanian front: In the region of Bialistch the Germans displayed white flags and called upon our soldiers to fraternize. They were met by the fire of our artillery. There were fusillades on the rest of the front.

"In the direction of Kovel, near Gradiska, our artillery brought down a German airplane. The machine was wrecked and the aviators were killed.

"In the Carpathian German artillery brought down one of our airplanes in flames. It fell in enemy territory. The French pilot and observer evidently were killed."

The Turkish Story.
Constantinople, July 6, via London.—An official statement issued by the Turkish war department reporting the battle in Eastern Galicia, says: "Galicia front: Our troops captured yesterday 262 Russians in repelling an attack. Five hundred Russians were killed with the bayonet."

The German Report.
Berlin, July 6, via London.—An artillery battle of great violence developed yesterday between Zborow and the German front in Eastern Galicia, says the official statement issued by the German headquarters staff. The bombardment diminished during the night, but increased in intensity again at dawn, which completely disrupted the fight on the food control bill.

SENATE VOTES FOR BONE-DRY AMENDMENT
After Turbulent Debate Proposition Carried By 54 To 34.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
WASHINGTON, July 6.—At the close of a day of turbulent debate, the senate tonight voted 52 to 34 against the so-called "bone dry" amendment. The senate tonight recessed until tomorrow in the midst of the prohibition fight on the food control bill.

Defeat of the "bone dry" proposal insures that legislation prohibiting manufacture of intoxicants will be limited to distilled beverages. Whether consumption as well as manufacture of distilled spirits shall cease during the war was a new element injected into the contest at the eleventh hour, which completely disrupted the leaders well-laid plans and caused the need for conferences on a compromise.

After roll calls showing a considerable majority against stopping manufacture of beer and wines or giving the president power to suspend their manufacture, the senate voted 68 to 16 to prohibit the manufacture of distilled beverages, and then by a vote of 65 to 40 tentatively adopted a provision prohibiting withdrawal of distilled spirits now held in bond for beverage purposes.

Upon disposition of the prohibition question the senate leaders expect to seek an agreement for a final vote on the food bill as a whole next Wednesday or Thursday.

MAIL FOR ENEMY CARRIED TO STATES BY NORSE SAILORS

Discovery By Federal Authorities—Bundle Of Letters Seized By Detectives.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
NEW YORK, July 6.—Federal authorities investigating suspected methods of communication between the United States and Germany announced here today the seizure of a bundle of letters, including communications, which, arriving from the central powers, apparently were intended to reach Alexander von Nuber, formerly Austrian consul general in New York. Von Nuber left here after the government investigated charges that he shipped reservists to Austria under fraudulent passports in 1915.

How the letters now confiscated were to reach von Nuber has not been disclosed, nor was his present whereabouts announced. The letters were brought here by sailors on a Scandinavian steamship and delivered to a saloonkeeper in Hoboken. The plan, according to the investigators, was for the mail to be re-shipped, hence so that it would appear to be correspondence from the United States.

The sailors admitted they were paid to smuggle mail past the British censors and promised to testify for the government if needed. Some of the letters were addressed to persons in New Zealand, Australia and India.

SAYS NEW MEN BRITISH ARMY MADE GOOD

Proved Themselves On A Hundred Occasions Superior To Germans.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
LONDON, July 6.—(Via Reuters' Ottawa Agency.)—Perry Robinson writes from British headquarters that, after surveying the results of the year, it can now be confessed that there were doubts as to the new British armies. But this disquietude vanished as the new men have proved, not once, but a hundred times, that they are superior to the Germans.

"We are confident today," he stated, "that the new armies are made of better men, and are better commanded than the German forces."

Robinson recounts incidents of the heroism of the English, Scottish, Welsh, Australian, Canadian and South African troops and states that not the least remarkable fact has been the performance of some of the latest drafts.

Several times officers had expressed misgivings, but they have been proven false and seemed ludicrous after the event.

"Behind this great quality of the men is the enormous development of the war machine. We have learned to strike with a fist more heavily mailed than Germany has ever known how to use. Whether the job be short or long, the army had perfect confidence that it is stronger than the enemy and that only one end is possible."

RESIGNS BECAUSE OF CONSCRIPTION

President Of Board Of Trade Of Kitchener, Erstwhile Berlin, Ont.

KITCHENER, Ont., July 6.—There was a dramatic ending to the regular meeting of the board of trade last night, when following the passing of a resolution favoring the conscription bill and the Borden government in the war effort, W. G. Cleghorn, two Liberals, resigned. The statement was made that to pass such a resolution would be to introduce politics, from which, he thought, the board of trade should be free. The mover and seconder replied that as Liberals they were trying to rise above politics in presenting this resolution.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)

They recommended that the authorities discourage such racing for competition purposes until the necessary alterations have been made. Seigal's remains were sent to his home in Mitchell, Ont., for interment.

REVOLUTION IN AUGUST HINTED AT

Further Evidence Of The Lowering Of German Morale.

(By The Canadian Overseas Correspondent)
CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Friday, July 6, via London. "Fosse 5, the pithead which overlooked the German lines in Avion, disappeared yesterday in a cloud of dust and fire. It has been for some time a mark for our heavy artillery, but whether the destruction was caused by our shells or by the Germans themselves is not known. If they anticipated a further immediate advance of our men they may have blown up the mine workings themselves for it is their policy to leave behind them nothing that would aid in speedy resumption of mining operations in this important coal area.

Much evidence of the lowering of the German morale continues to be discovered in captured trenches and raided houses. A remarkable letter was found recently which had been written to a Bavarian at the front three weeks ago. The letter said in part:

"One can well understand that you are sick of this horrible business. I believe the climate has been reached, for now one hears nothing but complaints. The German Social-Democrats have announced that if a single shot is fired in August revolution will follow. The situation is no longer good. They are on the track of the German Kaiser too, and if it lasts much longer it will be the end with Prussia, for the Prussians and the English are the masters. These two alone carry on the war. The others are merely in their hands."

If much of that sort of stuff is reaching Prince Rupprecht's ears, the decline in fighting spirit of the Bavarians is removed from the realm of a matter for wonder.

It is understood that our casualties have been very light during the last two weeks and exceptionally so in the killed and missing classes.

TWO GERMANS SENT TO INTERNMENT ON ORDER OF WASHINGTON AUTHORITIES.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
NEW YORK, July 6.—Agents for the department of justice this afternoon arrested two Germans described as Carl Heynen, a German organizer and an authority on Mexican affairs, and F. A. Burmeister. The latter is alleged to be a spy paymaster.

Heynen, since German consul at Mexico City, and prior to that connected with the Hamburg-American line, was mentioned in connection with munition contracts alluded to in correspondence between the British and the former attaché was returning to Germany. This correspondence indicated Heynen's connection with the Bridgeport, Conn., projectile company as treasurer.

The federal agents who made the arrests said the men were taken into custody by order of the authorities in Washington.

The men were sent to Ellis Island, N.Y., for internment.

CLAIM FOUND CLEW MURDER OF POLICEMAN

Bag Discovered Near Scene Of Calgary Tragedy Containing Jewelry.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
CALGARY, Alta., July 6.—A valuable clew is now in the hands of the police as to the murderer of Policeman Arthur Duncan last Sunday night.

In the store near which the body of Duncan was shot, the police have discovered a bag, supposedly belonging to the murderer, containing some eighteen gold watches, a number of diamonds and other articles of jewelry.

Many of them had come from local pawn shops and are believed to be the results of numerous small robberies reported in the past to the police.

The police expect to have the guilty person before long.

OPPOSITION OF QUEBEC, HE SAYS, IS EXAGGERATED

Assertion By General Neill After Completing Tour Of Province.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
MONTREAL, July 6.—The extent of the opposition that is to be expected from the province of Quebec to the putting into force of the government's military service bill has been greatly exaggerated, according to General W. J. Neill, Canadian representative of the British remount commission.

General Neill who has just completed a trip through the province in connection with the completion of plans to purchase 6,000 Canadian horses overseas monthly, in an interview declares that nowhere did he find any serious feeling against the bill. The chief opposition in the country districts, he said, is from men who are worried because of the high cost of living, and who have come to believe that the high cost of food and other necessities of life are caused by fighting Germany. Even this notion, according to General Neill, is not very widespread.

The general said he has received a letter from General Turner, the Canadian commander in England, saying that Canadians on the firing line are looking to Canada to help finish the task of crushing militarism, and that they are confident that the country will keep its promise to send 500,000 men.

ENORMOUS POWER OF UNITED STATES OVER NEUTRALS

Declaration By Lord Robert Cecil, British Minister Of Blockade.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
LONDON, July 6.—"The United States has an enormous power in its hands today in its control of exports to European neutrals," said Lord Robert Cecil, the minister of blockade, in a talk on this subject this afternoon. "I do not like to express any opinion as to the policy which would guide it in the exercise of this power," continued Lord Robert. "That is the United States' business, not ours. However, we have had three years of intensive experience in blockade and everything we have learned during that time is at the disposal of the United States."

"The United States has the power of making any bargain and stipulation that this is a very important weapon against Germany. The foodstuffs which Germany obtains from Holland and Denmark alone must be measured in hundreds of thousands of tons, while the mineral and fish exports of the Scandinavian nations are of vital importance to Germany."

MINNEAPOLIS, July 6.—Plans for uniting the 7,000 flour mills of the country to aid the government in its task of food distribution are now being worked out, according to an announcement today by James F. Bell, Minneapolis flour man, chairman of the United States millers' committee, formed by request of Herbert C. Hoover, public food administrator. An open address of increased here today and signed by Mr. Bell says:

"A flour mill in active operation may become of equal or greater value than a regiment of troops."

PROPOSES ADVANCE OF FEE FOR STAND IN CITY MARKET

Superintendent Makes Application To Commissioners—Says

An increase of the fee for a stand at the city market to a figure in advance of 10 cents now paid is the application by the market superintendent to the commissioners. With regard to the amount of increase he suggests that the fee should be doubled or even made 25 cents per stand, and adds that the advance would be perfectly justified on account of the general advance in prices. The market superintendent says that he has spoken to a number of those who sell at the market and they signified their willingness to pay an increased fee.

PARAMOUNT DUTY TO SAVE FOR EXPORT

Injunction Of Hon. W. J.
Hanna, Food Controller.

NEEDS OF ALLIES, HE SAYS, ARE PRESSING

People Should Know Facts
Before It Is Too Late.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
TORONTO, July 6.—Canada's food controller, Hon. W. J. Hanna, has already completed much of the organization of his department to deal with fixing food prices and to provide large quantities of food for export to Great Britain and her allies. This afternoon Mr. Hanna addressed a largely attended meeting of the Women's Press club at the Northern Crown bank building, which was attended by representatives of other women's organizations. He reviewed the work that has already been done and outlined briefly some of the things he expects to finish shortly.

This was the first public address of Hon. Mr. Hanna since his appointment two weeks ago and he intimated that it was his intention to give the press from time to time information as to just how desperate were the needs of the allies and of what is being done to meet them, because he is satisfied that when people realize what the situation really is they will co-operate in an endeavor to solve it.

Situation Desperate
"The situation is desperate," he said, "it is desperate in this sense, that it will be a terrible meaning to us and Great Britain and her allies if this situation is not met. It is equally important that the people should know the facts as they are before it is too late to meet them. If they don't know the facts, who will be to blame if the people of the allies should go hungry, and if the sons of Canada and the United States should have to return into defeat because Canada and the United States have not sent them bread?" he asked.

"That is the real position, and it is not overrating it. Let the facts be known and the people will respond."

"The reason for the appointment of food controllers in Canada and the United States are identically the same as led to the appointments in Great Britain, France and elsewhere, and, as I said, are just as urgent," continued Mr. Hanna. "In short with Russia—the greatest wheat producing country in the world—Roumania and Hungary cut off from the markets of Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy, and with the millions of men in these countries engaged at the front or in munitions, Great Britain and the United States must, even in normal times, rely on Canada and the United States for their bread, their beef, their bacon, and the supply of these in Canada and the United States is not altogether unequal to the demand."

Wheat Requirements
"The figures in wheat alone, as they are estimated today are: The total requirements for the allies and neutrals for the year will be 1,100,000,000 bushels. The production of Europe for this period is estimated at 545,000,000 bushels. We must export from Canada and the United States this shortage 460,000,000 bushels."

It would not be difficult for Canada and the United States to meet the demand for 460,000,000 bushels if they had the crop they had in 1916. The reason for the situation becoming so acute is that the 1914 crop was a record up to that time. The crop of 1915 was larger and then the crop of 1916 was so small that there was an immediate shortage.

The estimate of what Canada and the United States could export, Mr. Hanna said, was 460,000,000 bushels, and this was 300,000,000 bushels as against 460,000,000 bushels required, leaving a clear shortage of 160,000,000 bushels which must be made up. If the crops of India and Australia could reach Great Britain, readily there would be no real difficulty. However, because of the great distance, supplies are unsatisfactory.

Elimination of Waste.
Fortunately, said he, there is room to make up a great part of the shortage in wheat or other goods by means to which everyone can contribute. These include:

"The elimination of waste in hotels, restaurants, public places and in the homes of Canada, would work an enormous saving."

"Every man, woman and child in Canada and in the United States must sacrifice other foods to save at least one-third to two-thirds of wheat which they now consume."

"We, living here in Canada, have begun to feel the pinch of war, and those who have been in Europe and have returned do not hesitate to speak." Mr. Hanna continued, emphasizing this, he read two letters, one from A. J. Hodgson, of Montreal, and another from Sir George Bury, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Sir George Bury recently returned from Russia and since his return he says he has been giving considerable time to the food question, being struck by the lavishness and waste of food in Canada compared with European belligerent countries. The revolution in Russia, he says, was brought about by the food shortage; when he was there there were four meatless days a week and the vast majority of people were living on black bread, cabbage soup and an occasional piece of fish.

C. P. R.'s Lead.
Sir George states that some time ago it was decided by the Canadian Pacific Railway not to purchase or serve veal, lamb or young chickens. The company has also discontinued the use of what is known as the individual package, because the casing adds greatly to the cost of the packages. The use of darker bread in Canada was also favored by Sir George Bury.

Knowing that there is such a great waste, Hon. Mr. Hanna went on, it provides a means by which the export demands can be met.

"Our paramount duty is to save food for export. If we can do this and save money, too, so much the better. If not, we must save food in any case, and as far as possible reduce the cost, and it is with the hope that we can do both that food controllers have been appointed in both the United States and Canada."

PREMIER AND SIR SAM TILT ON RECRUITING

EMPHATIC DENIAL: FIRM REJOINDER

Ex-Minister States Premier
Listened To Demands Of Employers.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
OTTAWA, July 6.—After the protracted sitting of Thursday winding up after five o'clock this morning with the adjournment of the session, the military service act the members of the commons were content to put in a short day's labor at the Friday sitting. The house adjourned at 10 o'clock until tomorrow afternoon when it will meet for the first time this session on Saturday.

After a few preliminaries the house went into committee on the selective conscription bill, but anyone who made with the adoption of the clauses of the measure, because the time was largely taken up with statistical and other statements relating to the overseas force of militia and air corps. It was agreed that when the house meets tomorrow, the non-contentious clauses of the bill will first receive consideration.

Premier Replies
As soon as the house went into committee Sir Robert Borden made a somewhat lengthy statement in reply to the allegations of Sir Sam Hughes that he had suggested a slowing up of recruiting during the spring and summer of 1916 because of the fear that the makers of munitions and manufacturers would be unable to get sufficient men to meet the requirements of their industries. The prime minister most emphatically declared that he had never said anything to the effect that the military service act was to be lessened or that he desired a lessening of the efforts to secure recruits. Nothing more had been done to suggest that more care should be taken in recruiting so that men would not be induced to enlist who could better serve their country by remaining at home.

Equally Emphatic
Sir Sam Hughes, on the other hand, was quite as emphatic in declaring that both the prime minister and Sir Thomas White, minister of finance, had listened to the demands of the employers of labor and had suggested the desirability of diminishing recruiting efforts. He intimated that as a result of these representations there had been less energetic action on the part of the military service act.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that it was apparent that as a result of a misunderstanding between the prime minister and the ex-minister of militia, recruiting efforts had been lessened. He suggested that this might be one of the causes which has made it necessary to introduce the conscription bill.

Never Suggested
Sir Robert Borden assured the house that he had never, on any occasion, suggested such a thing. Nothing more had ever been done, he said, than to direct recruiting officers to direct their efforts toward securing the class of men who could be best spared from the country.

This intimation of the bill was in line with the principles of the bill, which the house, which aims at giving the state the services of those men who can be of service to the country by remaining at home.

"Enough" England?
General Hughes said that from time to time he had received complaints from manufacturers that recruiting agents were taking their men. Mr. McLaughlin of the Dominion Steel company, had asked that men be not taken from the mines. He had declined to interfere, but had agreed to ask recruiting officers not to concentrate their efforts on any one industry. Sir Sam said he had informed the prime minister that German gold was at the bottom of the agitation, and he had told the finance minister and the cabinet council on an occasion at least that plenty of men were available in Canada. General Hughes said he remembered distinctly that on one occasion the minister of finance had

SAYS LABOR IS DISCREDITED BY WATTERS' TALK

Representative Of Enginemen
Says He Has No Authority To Threaten Strike.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
OTTAWA, July 6.—W. L. Best, long-time representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, in a statement issued tonight questions the right of J. C. Watters, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor congress to speak for labor—organized or unorganized—in threatening a general strike should the selective conscription bill pass the house of commons and be enforced.

"I question the wisdom, or propriety, the right, the authority of any labor leader or individual to make any public statement calculated to convey to the minds of the Canadian people the impression that organized labor throughout the Dominion, under the existing national circumstances, is entirely opposed to selective conscription," says Mr. Best, adding, "the further utterances of this kind now before parliament will be universally opposed by the organized labor forces by every means at their disposal, even to the extent of a general strike."

"I deeply regret that any person or persons should so far discredit the good name of organized labor by such utterances which will serve no good purpose, and if permitted to go unquestioned would have a tendency to spread broadcast the inference that organized labor was void of any national spirit and unwieldy, to respond to a nation's call at a time when the safety of the flag and all that it stands for is in danger."

SENATE VOTES FOR BONE-DRY AMENDMENT

After Turbulent Debate Proposition Carried By 54 To 34.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
WASHINGTON, July 6.—At the close of a day of turbulent debate, the senate tonight voted 52 to 34 against the so-called "bone dry" amendment. The senate tonight recessed until tomorrow in the midst of the prohibition fight on the food control bill.

Defeat of the "bone dry" proposal insures that legislation prohibiting manufacture of intoxicants will be limited to distilled beverages. Whether consumption as well as manufacture of distilled spirits shall cease during the war was a new element injected into the contest at the eleventh hour, which completely disrupted the leaders well-laid plans and caused the need for conferences on a compromise.

After roll calls showing a considerable majority against stopping manufacture of beer and wines or giving the president power to suspend their manufacture, the senate voted 68 to 16 to prohibit the manufacture of distilled beverages, and then by a vote of 65 to 40 tentatively adopted a provision prohibiting withdrawal of distilled spirits now held in bond for beverage purposes.

Upon disposition of the prohibition question the senate leaders expect to seek an agreement for a final vote on the food bill as a whole next Wednesday or Thursday.

After Turbulent Debate Proposition Carried By 54 To 34.

(By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)
WASHINGTON, July 6.—At the close of a day of turbulent debate, the senate tonight voted 52 to 34 against the so-called "bone dry" amendment. The senate tonight recessed until tomorrow in the midst of the prohibition fight on the food control bill.

Defeat of the "bone dry" proposal insures that legislation prohibiting manufacture of intoxicants will be limited to distilled beverages. Whether consumption as well as manufacture of distilled spirits shall cease during the war was a new element injected into the contest at the eleventh hour, which completely disrupted the leaders well-laid plans and caused the need for conferences on a compromise.

After roll calls showing a considerable majority against stopping manufacture of beer and wines or giving the president power to suspend their manufacture, the senate voted 68 to 16 to prohibit the manufacture of distilled beverages, and then by a vote of 65 to 40 tentatively adopted a provision prohibiting withdrawal of distilled spirits now held in bond for beverage purposes.

Upon disposition of the prohibition question the senate leaders expect to seek an agreement for a final vote on the food bill as a whole next Wednesday or Thursday.

FARMERS' PICNIC AT CLOVER BAR

A. Attracts Large Crowd—
Long Program Enjoyed

The annual picnic of the Clover Bar and East Clover Bar branches of the U.F.A. was attended as usual by a large crowd at the Hortonburg grounds.

The day started off for a record day, but the pleasure was marred about 3 o'clock by a heavy down-pour of rain. Everybody hunted a shelter of some kind but when the rain was over, in spite of the mud the sports went on as usual. There was a large program of sports and several very valuable prizes were donated by some of the leading firms of the city and others. The first was a junior football match between Clover Bar and East Clover Bar teams. East Clover Bar won, the prize being a football, given by the Market Hardware Company. The same teams then played a very close baseball match but the East Clover Bar team walked off with the five dollar prize. The races were run off in the following order:

In the evening a football match was played between Bremner and Clover Bar, the score being 1-0 in favor of Bremner. At the same time the basketball match was played between Bremner and Clover Bar, the score being 2-1 in favor of Bremner. Last, but not least, was the tug-of-war between the Horton Guard Militia and a pick-up team. The Guards put up a strong pull but were pulled over the line. Everybody went home pretty muddy and a little tired after such a strenuous day, but all apparently happy.

said that Canada had done enough for England.

Sir Sam said he had replied that Canada was not fighting for England, but for the allies and humanity.

He asserted that the prime minister had, before he sailed for England in March, 1916, suggested that he should let up on recruiting as far as possible.

"My Assurance"

Sir Sam said the only thing he blamed the premier for was listening to the whisperings of these men when "he had my assurance that there were plenty of men."

Sir Robert Borden repeated that he had never made any request that recruiting efforts should be lessened. He had not made the statement to Mr. Godfrey of Toronto or any other man which was attributed to him. Sir Robert said he had discussed the matter with Mr. Godfrey and he bore out his own views as to what was said by him (Sir Robert) at the interview at which Mr. Godfrey was present.

"Did Not Press It"

Sir Sam said that so far as Mr. Godfrey was concerned, he did not make the statement in Toronto, but he knew gentlemen in Toronto whose word was unimpeachable to whom he did make the statements. He also notified prominent members of the opposition. Mr. MacDonald, member for Pictou, was named as one with whom he communicated.

Mr. Godfrey has personally discussed with me what took place on that occasion," declared Sir Robert, "and made no such version of our conversation as the honorable gentleman has given. He gave an absolutely different version of it, I am ready to leave it to Mr. Godfrey's memory so far as I am concerned."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that there was evidently an issue of fact between the prime minister and Sir Sam Hughes. This measure was based upon the statement in the preamble that voluntary recruiting had ceased. Whatever passed between the two ministers, the former minister of militia did not let up on recruiting. He did not press it. Whatever happened was in consequence of the conversation with the prime minister.

Sir Sam let up on his efforts and did not pursue, with the same energy he had done before, his policy of recruiting. If there had been the same efforts as there had been before, perhaps we would not have had this bill today. It seemed beyond dispute that this legislation, which was regrettable at the present time from many points of view, was partly brought about by the misunderstanding which took place in the ranks of the government. There was no unanimity of unity of action.

Casualties

Sir Robert presented some interesting figures in regard to enlisted and Canadian casualties. He said that the infantry enlisted during the twelve months ending May 31 numbered 42,523; between January 1, 1917, and May 31, 13,353, and between April and May, 2,083. The total casualties for the twelve months ending May 31 were 47,026.

Of these 45,995 were wounded and 21,040 killed in action, died of wounds, prisoners of war, missing, etc. The infantry casualties from January 1, to May 31, were 27,226, consisting of 17,187 wounded and 10,039 killed, etc. The infantry casualties during April and May were 21,364. Of these, 12,861 were wounded and 7,503 killed, etc.

Sir Robert gave the casualties from May 12 to July 4 as follows: Killed in action, 1,240; died of wounds, 429; died of sickness, 76; prisoners of war, 64; missing, 269; wounded, 4,529.

R. M. AMBULANCE CORPS

Men interested in first aid and ambulance work would do well to get enrolled with this corps. The Reserve Militia Ambulance Corps assembles for drill at 8 o'clock each Wednesday evening in city market hall, First street, opposite Nelson avenue. Now is a good time to enroll, so as to be ready for a drill in the future. The aid to the injured to be taken up in the fall and winter months. There was a good average attendance of men to the drill on Wednesday. The men are keen on their work and were congratulated by the M. O. Dr. Geo. H. Macdonald, on their efficiency. The exercises consisted of stretcher and bandage drill, under the direction of Acting Sergeant G. W. Taylor, who has consistently stayed with the ambulance section since its inception, nearly two years ago under the auspices of the Frontiersmen's Legion.

LONDON, July 6, via Reuters' Ottawa Agency. A despatch from Sydney states that with the object of stimulating recruiting in New South Wales, Sir Samuel McCaughey has offered to insure five hundred soldiers for a total of £50,000, entailing an outlay of about $50,000 annually.

How the War Can Be Won From the Skies

Tremendous plans are now being formed to deliver a crippling blow at Germany's military efficiency, not only "putting out her eyes," but spreading havoc by aerial armadas numbered by thousands. Vast sums are to be spent for the establishment of an American air-fleet on a colossal scale, and training-schools for air-pilots are beginning to spring up like mushrooms over night.

During the past three years, there has been in Europe not only an immense development of the art of flying, but a specific evolution of the allied art of the aerial duello.

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for July 7th, one of the most interesting articles is a translation from the French of Oscar Ribet, Chief Instructor in a French "School of Pilots." This article explains in much detail, the tactics of air-fighting. It is illustrated by sketches which visualize the tactics of pursuit, offense, and defense.

There are many other features of unusual interest in "The Digest" this week, among which are:

A World Tour in an Observation Car

Those of us who have traveled to any extent are familiar with that luxury of the tourist, the observation-car. It enables the voyager to obtain a clear view of all parts of the landscape through which he is passing. Its windows open impartially upon every side. It affords a panorama of the country to right and left, of the pass ahead and of the long trail winding out behind. It shows you mountain and plain, river and sea, green fields and smoky towns, and you are free to decide which of these you prefer. There is no compulsion, no touting. Your judgment is completely uninfluenced. Through the world of events THE LITERARY DIGEST travels in precisely the same manner, giving its readers an unbiased view of all questions, all ideas, all diversities of thought. Here, as in the observation-car, you are free to decide upon your likings. There is no attempt to persuade or convince you. You are simply given a broad view of the facts. The decision rests solely with yourself.

A wise old seer in the medical profession once said that it was impossible to improve on human nature, but the distinguished medical man had never seen the tiny little midgest mother, Doretta, who will be seen at the Exhibition. Now, in the first place Doretta has been very much abused by nature, as she stands but 28 inches high and weighs but 27 pounds. When she went looking for a husband the nearest she could find to her size was Major Boykin of Kentucky, who stands 42 inches high and weighs 37 pounds. She was game, however, and they were married in Concord, N. C., 11 years ago. A year later when their first child was born, it was found necessary to resort to the terrible hazardous last resort, the Caesarian operation. Six years subsequently when the second child, a little son, was born, it was also found necessary to resort to the same operation, for it was that alone that enabled them to see the light of day, and gave to Doretta the distinction of being the only midgest that ever gave successful birth to normal children. Her little daughter, Lucile, who is now 10 years of age, is head and shoulders taller than her mother, while the little boy who is four years old is about six inches taller than his mother. The fact that Doretta and her children are alive and healthy is considered miraculous by the medical profession, and Edmonton Fair is certainly to be congratulated in their effort in securing this high class and meritorious attraction for the feature show of the Fair to be held here from the 9th to 14th inclusive.—Adv.

one or other of the many beauty spots in the immediate vicinity of Edmonton. The Dominion Day celebrations being observed this year on Monday enabled large numbers of week-enders to prolong their stay amid the sylvan charms of their favorite summer resort.

Monday seems to be the most popular, as it undoubtedly is the most convenient day, for a general holiday, giving the pleasure-seekers two, and in many cases, three clear days for their week-end outings. This arrangement seems to suit much better and to give more general satisfaction than one single day in mid-week, and it may not be considered presumptuous if we express the hope that when His Worship Mayor Henry is deciding the day to select as civic holiday, he will see his way to manage to have it on a Monday.

Following the closing of the city schools, several families came down here on Saturday and Monday to make their home at the lake for the months of July and August. Large numbers journeyed down by road and rail on Sunday and Monday, automobiles laden with visitors, many of them flying flags, were continually arriving and added to the air of animation and gaiety of the holiday scene.

Among the motorists on Sunday was a large party from the Pantages theatre, who came in three autos, and included Messrs. W. W. Watson, P. Barber, J. Dear, R. Neil, R. Blackerby, G. Clark, L. Trefrey, R. Munder, W. Miles, H. H. Wolfe and Mr. and Mrs. E. Wolfe.

The weather-clerk was good to us, and the outlook for the Dominion Day. A double trainload of visitors arrived on Saturday, and the town is gay with flags. Hotels are full and cottagers and residents have many friends visiting for the holidays.

Amongst the number at the Lac la Biche Inn are Mrs. Hardy and Mrs. Reg. Hardly, Mr. and Mrs. E. Calder, Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Farquharson. Miss Ruth Barber is also visiting friends, and there are many others.

Mr. W. A. Clement from down east is again this year visiting his nephew, Mr. Pope Clement, and our old friend Bert is looking younger than ever. Constable Bailey, formerly stationed here with the N.W.M.P., has come back to his old stamping ground for a few days, on sick leave. All seems gay and bright, the holiday crowd amusing themselves on the sunlit lake, and through the battle line far away, where the grim reaper, "Death," is gathering his terrible harvest unceasingly. In a little house on Main street, there is weeping and mourning today. Mrs. Eurbly has just received the notification of the death of her husband in battle in France.

FARMERS FROM TOLLERTON TO CHIP LAKE WILL BE LEFT STRANDED AND IN POVERTY BY REMOVAL OF RAILS ON 40 MILE STRETCH

Big District Which Has Nearly One Thousand Residents is up in Arms at What They Say is a Gross Injustice—Delegation is Sent To Edmonton to Stir Public Feeling by Presenting Facts Regarding Their Case.

The extensive district lying along the C.N.T. between Tollerton and Chip Lake, a distance of about forty miles, is up in arms as the result of a notification just sent by registered letter to every resident.

The letter, which bears the signature of Alex. Ferguson, inspecting engineer, warns the settlers that the rails of the line through this district are to be taken up within the next few days and they are told to make what arrangements are necessary for their own protection.

Nearly 1,000 Residents.

In the district affected there are nearly one thousand residents, according to a delegation composed of F. R. Hewitt and R. W. Oliver, of Carrot Creek, who have been sent to Edmonton to show the great injustice that will be done to a big farming community.

To the south of Carrot Creek are big timber limits, they point out, which will be cut off from access if the C.N.R. line is taken up. Already several industries are planning to start factories there. Many settlers will also be left stranded after having lost their fortunes in the country, following the opening up of the railway.

Will Bring Poverty.

Messrs. Hewitt and Oliver point out that there would be no objection to the removal of the rails were the district unsettled, but they assert that the threatened action will bring poverty to many who are just now getting well on their feet.

The delegation intends to stay in the city until they make their case as strong as possible. They have asked the Bulletin to publish the following letter, which sets out the case of the residents of the country affected.

Received Letters on Monday.

On Tuesday last each settler in the district of Carrot Creek received a registered letter from Edmonton, signed by Mr. Ferguson, "Inspecting Government Engineer," that the rails running through our district were to be taken up and the only other information that we were given was that the men were sent, we presume by orders of Mr. Ferguson, to see what "our lands were worth." These gentlemen never approached the subject of removing the rails, but we have been getting in or out of the country until a figure was given them, and when we placed the depreciation of our land after the track was gone, told us "We were the most unreasonable men in the country," and knocked the value of our places to about one-half the figure stated. May we, please, through the columns of your valuable paper, point out not only to the Government—who, we presume, are at the head of this outrage—but to the public at large, our position on this matter.

Railway service has been given us about two years, and the greater majority of us have come into this country owing to the railway facilities. We have struggled hard, some of us spent as much as $2,000 on our homesteads to make them of use to the country, and we think by the moving of this track whatever the Government promise to give us can never repay us for the money and the time we have spent to make this district the country it has developed into.

After taking the track up, the nearest place to get to is about five miles distant, but impossible to get there at all by means of a ship, as there is nothing but swamp and bush. The next place is twelve miles distant, and it is this we want to particularly point out to the Government and to the public, that to have to go to that point will entail a very much greater expense upon us in every way.

Food at the present time is hardly obtainable at the prices we are charged, and to add at least another $5.00 a ton on our goods to have them freighted across to us would mean absolute starvation to a great majority. We feel that the only thing to do will be to leave our home lands and the several years' hard labor we have spent to make this country worth living in at all.

We again wish to point out that there have been several good young men give up their home and enlisted in the Canadian army, and, yes, have paid the full sacrifice in the war. Have these men ever been consulted on the depreciation on their land? No. Some of them, we all trust, will return some day, and what will they think when they find that the only means of getting in or out of this country has been taken away from them. We ask: "Is this fair play?"

Where is the Government's right to destroy property in this manner? We feel it is a crime just as much as if someone were to come and steal our money and our stock from us.

Rely on Winter Work.

Most of us rely on our winter work for the buying of our seed grain, and we will point out that right in this district there are valuable timber, which every winter are utilized by large firms from the city and also by the railway companies, giving work to everyone of us and many more. Needless to say, this industry is absolutely killed, leaving us absolutely no work during the winter months.

Only on Tuesday last there was published a Government letter from No. 512 McLeod Block, dated June 18th, 1917, and signed by Mr. A. R. Ruthford, Director of National Service, urging us to do everything possible to break more land and to prepare for a bumper crop in the year 1918. Are we encouraged in this work by the taking up of the track, our only means of marketing such crops as we can raise?

There are a good many homesteaders who have no teams to haul to the Grand Trunk, and there are not the roads to haul upon even if they had. The war, no one would deny, is the present time we can communicate with a doctor and have the sick person taken to a hospital in a short time, but by the drastic action of our Government a person could be killed and buried before anything could possibly be done. Has this been thought out? We ask for fair play and no more.

Probably you will say that there are other settlements a much greater distance from a railroad, but these people who have settled here came believing that the Government would have a railroad almost at their doors, and to take it away now will be a far greater blow to them than if they had never had it. It will simply mean that a great majority will leave the country, and also mean destruction to a farming district that is just getting into shape to produce.

If this steel was the means of winning the war, no one would object to standing against it, but we feel confident that it is not the case. Therefore, we are unanimous in stating that a Government which will thus destroy our property is unfit to govern our country. We ask the public to back us to the utmost in our fight for our interests and our homes.

MARKET GARDENERS

TO ORGANIZE.
An attempt is being made, it is learned, to organize the market gardeners and other growers who sell at the Edmonton market into an association. The idea is that the association would set prices at which produce would be sold at the market; also it would act as a commission house in the sale of produce from the growers, it being presumed that the association would have a standing in the market.

THUNDERSTORM WAS CLIMAX OF DAY

Some Rain Accompanied Display—Electric Service In Trouble.

A warm and sultry day yesterday culminated in a sharp summer thunderstorm that broke about 10 o'clock last night. The temperature dropped a number of degrees and some rain fell. The lightning was very vivid and the thunder peals intense. No damage is reported except that the city's electric service was put out of business for an hour or so, both power and light lines suffering.

ESKIMO ON WAY SOUTH PRISONERS

Inspector Lamouze, R.N.W.M.P.,
With Two Natives Of Arctic,
Arrested On Coppermine.

Word comes from Fort Chipewyan on Athabasca lake that the Great Slave Lake cleared of ice on the fourteenth of June and that the Mackenzie fleet waiting to cross from Fort Resolution near the mouth of the Slave river, would leave a few days after that date for the first trip down the Mackenzie. Both the Hudson's Bay and the Northern Transportation Co. winter their Mackenzie river boats at this point and each year they receive the freight train goes in to Peace River and carry it on to the posts along the river and into the Arctic.

This year it will be about the middle of July before the trip from Fort MacPherson on the Peel is ended and the people from that faraway point reach railroad transportation at Peace River. They are expected here July 20.

There will be some very interesting people come out on this year's first boat from the Mackenzie. Inspector Lamouze of the N.W.M.P. and the two Eskimos he arrested in Coronation Gulf at the mouth of the Coppermine river will be passengers en route to Edmonton, where the trial of the Eskimos for the killing of two Roman Catholic priests on the Coppermine will take place in August.

Inspector Lamouze is not yet twenty-eight years of age but has been with the force for eleven years. He was from June, 1915, until the time he arrives here, in making this the longest patrol ever made by a member of the force. He spent the last winter with his prisoners at Herschel Island, from where he brought them early this spring to Fort MacPherson by dog team; there he will come out on one of the river steamers.

Winter's Fur Catch
The whole winter's catch of fur in the Mackenzie river basin will also be brought out on the first trip as far as Fort Smith on the Slave river, where it is to be transported across the portage at that point, from there several trips are required to handle it as far as the Chutes on the Peace, here it is again portaged, then brought by boat to the mouth of the Coppermine. On the decks of the steamers there are usually people who have not seen the outside for so long as a quarter of a century. They have been serving the trading companies in some cases and in others they are from the service of either the Roman Catholic Church or the Church of England. Both churches are doing big work up there and in both there are men and women who have been in the north as their home and they only leave when necessity demands.

CHARGE DISMISSED AGAINST FOUR MEN

Magistrate Finds Insufficient Evidence To Satisfy Him Trial Should Proceed.

William B. Channell, J. J. Burns, Fred Schwabe and Jack Anderson, were dismissed by Magistrate Barclay in the police court Friday morning on charges of false pretences. The charges were preferred by Petro Rodner of Lamont, and were in connection with the transferring of two river lots in the Lobstick settlement and a farm and estate of Bodner's at Lamont, from Bodner to one John Anderson.

When dismissing the defendants Magistrate Barclay drew attention to the fact that Channell, John Anderson, H. S. Byencheck and Schwabe were made defendants in a supreme court action on May 3rd, one day after the present case had been instigated. During that case, Magistrate Barclay pointed out that an affidavit had been made by a lawyer mentioning Channell and J. A. McCaffery, and in the present case Burns and Anderson are named as defendants and McCaffery and Byencheck do not appear.

"There seems to be a good deal of confusion between the various documents put in and I am not satisfied on the words of the action and in my opinion there is not sufficient evidence to satisfy me that any one of the accused should be put on trial here."

"The evidence of Terank is not to be believed. There is really more evidence connecting White and McCaffery with this transaction than connects these three accused persons. The transfer was induced by White and through Schwabe as interpreter. There is no evidence that Schwabe did not truthfully interpret."

"In the case of White I trust he will stop in his career before he will participate in such a transaction and will take counsel with those wiser than himself in these matters."

"You are discharged."

According to Bodner's story in the witness box the dismissed men met him in the Alberta hotel and induced him to transfer his property and for it he received a quantity of money and a mining certificate.

FINE WHEAT SAMPLE FROM BITTERN LAKE

Mr. C. P. Wilson, Bittern Lake Ranch, brought into the Bulletin office on Friday a sample of wheat grown on his farm which will take some beating. It is fully three and a half feet long and is headed out. Mr. Wilson has four hundred acres in crop all equal to the sample. He expects that it will begin to turn in about three weeks and be ready to cut in about a month. He states that the crop in his district is all in splendid condition and fully equal to any as at this time last year.

PREVENT AMATEURS ENTERING CONTESTS WITH SPEED CARS

Fatality at Calgary Not During a Race, But While "Warming Up"

Possibility of accident in the auto races which will be a feature of the Edmonton Exhibition, has been eliminated by the action of the management of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, which will permit amateurs to take part in the races. Though considerable pressure has been brought to bear on the management, it has declined in every instance to allow amateurs to enter. This year only professional racers who have cars specially built for racing, and know how fast they can go, and how fast they can go will race. While a fatal accident occurred in Calgary Thursday, it was not during the race but while the driver was out speeding his own car on the track.

The International Motor Contest Association which has sanctioned the Edmonton races, does not permit amateurs and professionals to meet in competition.

Thanks Young Man Rude.

Dear Madam—While walking along the street the other day a young man who was with me stopped to speak to several persons who were passing. There was another girl and another young man with us also. The three of us waited for this first young man, who stood and talked to these other persons a few minutes, then joined us. Also, when a young man stops to talk to ladies on the street should he take his hat off and hold it in his hand, or is it sufficient to tip it when he meets them? I shall appreciate it if you will answer these questions.

BIRDIE.

Since there was another young man with you and the first man did not let you stand there alone, it was quite correct for him to speak to these other persons without introducing you to them, although he should not have talked very long. When it is necessary to stop to speak to someone on the street it is often rather awkward to introduce a whole group, and continues much time.

A young man should hold his hat in his hand when he stops to talk to women. In very cold weather he can often be excused from doing more than raising his hat for just a minute because of danger from catching colds.

Young Man Lacking in Breeding.

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam—Went you give me your advice? I am in love with a young man of twenty-four, who is tall and good-looking. He thinks the world and all of me and has asked me to marry him. Now, the only trouble is that he is so nice when we are alone, he is always doing awkward things when we go out together and I am often ashamed of him. When he takes me out he never gets off the car first, but makes me get off first, and he never gets up when my mother comes into the room, as I think he ought to do. Do you think I ought to correct him?

C. B. V.

It is rather awkward to deal with a situation like this. If, however, you are going to marry the young man, do you not think you can, very tactfully, make him see what he should do at times? For instance, when getting off the car, if you will step aside and make a very plain that you are waiting for him to alight first, he may take the hint.

Warm Weather Salads.

Dear Madam—Can you suggest some salads that would be suitable to serve in summer? Y. E. L.

IMMIGRATION HALLS AT PEACE RIVER AND AT GRANDE PRAIRIE

Two To Be Built At Once, Says Supt. of Agencies For Dominion Gov't.

Herbert G. Johnston, superintendent of agencies for the Dominion Government, who has charge of the work in connection with the building of immigration halls in the west, states to the Bulletin that this week two contracts for immigration halls at Peace River and Grande Prairie will be placed near the depot in a beautiful poplar grove and a plot of ground large enough for a small demonstration yard will be provided for the keeper.

Mr. Johnston states that the amount of immigration into the north country this year is a surprise and every indication points to the travel continuing. The two points where the new halls will be erected will always be more or less of a clearing point for the vast country yet unsettled in the north, the one at Peace River serving for the Mackenzie and the one at Grande Prairie taking care of the great country lying along the base of the Rocky mountains and west to the B.C. line.

Bear Lake Sports Draw Big Crowd For Northern Holiday

Weather Was Ideal For Events and Crowd Was in Best Humor — Farmers in Anticipation of a Bumper Yield, Gave Themselves Day of Complete Enjoyment.

Peace River village was a deserted place on the holiday. The reason was simply "The Bear Lake sports." The program itself was due to start on July 2nd and, according to the program, was to finish July 3. It did finish then as far as the white people were concerned, but the real fun did not start until after this for "Bear Lake sports" is fundamentally a native celebration and the Indians from all the places between Dunvegan and Peace River were there in force.

The weather was ideal and the crowd in the best of humor. And why shouldn't they be. With the best prospects for a bumper crop in years, starting the farmers in the face they had reason to be optimistic and to enjoy themselves.

The arrangements for the two days of fun were in charge of a strong committee headed by Dr. McKeen, president; J. C. Knott, vice-president; and H. L. Dundas, secretary-treasurer.

The results of the events follow:

TRAP SHOOTING

No better example of the good that has come out of the constant trap shooting program throughout the country could be found than the result that has been accomplished in the little State of Rhode Island. For a number of years there was virtually no trap shooting in Rhode Island. Two years ago by strenuous campaigning the sport was awakened and since that time there has been a steady growth in trap shooting there. This year the state will have an amount of events that compares favorably with any other state of the union. For instance, the state championship was scheduled for June 8 and 9 at Westerly; on July 21 a registered tournament is slated to be shot at Green End Gun Club of Newport, R. I. while on October 6 the registered tournament of the Providence, R. I. Gun Club will be shot.

Sporting Facts and Fancies

Indianapolis fans are wild over Jack Hendrick's team for the fine showing it is making. Jack has put a lot of ginger into his bunch and they deserve the high place they hold. Incidentally the American Association is playing a grade of ball.

The more the Clevelanders think about it, the more they are mourning those $15,000 they forked up for Joe Wood's release. Wood is still warming the bench, in fact he is wearing quite a hole in it and also in his trousers.

Bill Steele likes himself in the role of a pirate. Ever since the Cardinals hired this southpaw he is showing signs of an awakening. Bill Kenworthy has taken the reins and while Frank Chance was ill handled the Los Angeles team very well.

Outfielder Kenneth Williams of the Portland Coast club league is now making his bow with the St. Louis Browns, who purchased him recently. Williams was tried out by the Reds two years ago.

Optimistic Oscar says: Rain, rain, go away. Never mind the crops and the big cost of living. You're spoiling a good ball game. So, beat it.

There is a certain tinge of sadness on the part of the Giants when they contemplate the good pitching being done by Rube Schauer. Rube has perfected his bow since he went to the Athletics, a thing which he lacked when he was in the McGraw outfit.

When Joseph J. Lannin, former owner of the Red Sox, sold Speaker to the Clevelanders for $50,000, he purchased Clarence Walker from the Browns to fill the place of the famous center fielder. At first Walker didn't make much of a hit with the Boston fans. In fact, they looked upon him with disfavour. He lacked experience and his work with the stick was not much to talk about. All of which is forgiven, now that he has shown to learn. Not alone that, but he has developed into the heaviest hitter on the Boston team and his fielding is excellent. And just to make the measure of his achievements full, he is considered the greatest long distance thrower in the big leagues. Now will you be good, you Boston fans.

Georges Carpentier, the French boxer, who has been flying for his country on the battle fronts, may yet come to America. He is trying to get permission from the French war department to be sent to the United States with the first squad of French flyers who may come over to instruct Americans as to the best methods of handling their machines over trenches under war conditions. If he gets the assignment he also hopes to give several boxing exhibitions in the United States for the benefit of the Red Cross.

1907—Bill Lang, the Australian heavyweight, knocked out Dick Kernick in two rounds at Melbourne.
1908—Tommy Murphy got the decision over Jack Goodman in a six-round bout at New York.
Harry Powers defeated Charley Lawrence in ten rounds at New York.

SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1917.

If the money Canadians are making out of the war were taken by the Government to meet the cost of the war, Canada would come out of the war with no war debt to pay. The more nearly that is done the less we shall have to "sweat for" in the days to come.

From the tone of some Canadian papers it is a crime that a British Government should have bungled in Mesopotamia—only equalled by the treasurable proposal that a Canadian Government which has bungled worse with smaller opportunities should go the road the British bunglers were made to go.

Canadians are resolved to fight the Hun to a finish in order that their children will not have to do it. Are they equally willing to deny themselves a period of extravagance in order that their children shall not have to pay for it? War prices and war contracts are flooding Canada with money that could be used to pay the cost of the war, but that is being used largely in the indulgence of private pleasure. Does our concern for the future generations go the length of a willingness to have this abnormal national income from the war used to meet its cost? Or do we insist on spending the money, borrowing the war fund, and leaving our children to pay for the spree?

A good many people in Edmonton can testify to their sorrow that the time to pay one's debts is when he has the money. Canada is now being flooded with "war money" as Edmonton was flooded a few years ago with money for speculation in real estate. And Canada is piling up a war debt, just as Edmonton speculators piled up future payments on real estate. It would have been better for the individual, and better for Edmonton, if he had discounted his future payments and got out of debt when the getting was good. It would be better for the Canadian tax-payer, and for Canada, if a large part of the cost of the war were being paid out of the flood of war money that is now creating a condition of temporary and artificial prosperity.

There are those who think that during the war we should cut out entertainments of all kinds upon which people are induced to spend money or which do not tend directly to centre attention upon which our future depends. But surely if there is any form of entertainment justified by its aims and results it is the entertainment features offered at a fair such as is held in this city every year. The object of the entertainment features of course is to draw the crowds and get the gate receipts; and the object of getting the gate receipts is to carry on an exhibition whereat the agricultural and other products of the country are shown, criticized and commended. If competition makes for betterment of products, and tends to arouse interest in production, then an agricultural exhibition is surely a worthy institution at a time when the world is threatened by starvation, and the last sort of entertainment to be cut out is that which makes it possible to hold a great agricultural exhibition. It is admitted that without the entertainment features the crowds could not be got, and without the crowds the exhibition could not be held.

Monday next—the Fair.

Our self-elected Parliament decided, by a majority of 49, to refuse the public a chance to vote on the proposal to exempt Quebec and to conscript men in other provinces to make up its quota. The next appropriate step will be for Parliament to again re-elect itself for another term.

Hon. Mr. Seigney says 25,000 men can be drafted from Quebec. No doubt. But will they? If the munition-makers and the Nationalists would not stand for a real recruiting campaign, will they stand for conscription? Or will they coax and threaten the local tribunals into exempting everybody who comes up to be executed?

Brigadier-General McLean, of St. John, N.B., expresses his warm approval of the conscription bill. The McLean battalion of St. John was one of the eastern units which hand-raked Western Canada last year to get recruits to fill up its ranks. The Brigadier's willingness to call upon Alberta to supply 10,000 more men to make up the shortage from Eastern Canada is entirely consistent and quite understandable.

The majority of the Nationalist members of Parliament, of course, voted for the conscription bill. How else would they vote? They got elected by preaching no participation in "Britain's wars." To save them from embarrassment recruiting has been carried on in Quebec with only a minimum of energy. Now it is proposed to conscript 55,000 of Quebec's shortage from other provinces and to leave it to Nationalist tribunals to say whether Quebec shall supply any of its shortage at all or not. No doubt the Nationalists would prefer to have neither conscription nor a recruiting campaign in Quebec. But, as between a conscription bill that can only conscript in their part of the country so far as they want it to, and a demand that Quebec be called upon to provide its whole contingent—they naturally stand for the conscription bill.

Sir Robert Borden expressed himself as having little sympathy with a proposal to increase the allowance to soldiers' dependents, and called upon his supporters to vote down the proposal, which they did. The substance of Sir Robert's objection was that the dependents of Canadian soldiers are being as well looked after as those of any other country. If so, it is not the Government that is to be credited, but those public-spirited citizens who have been giving their time voluntarily to work which the Government ought to do, and the loyal and liberal section of the public who have been paying the nation's debt to the soldier's family out of their own pockets. Left to subsist on the Government allowance, the soldier's family would have a hard time of it under present conditions. And if—thanks to private liberality—the soldier's family are as well provided for in Canada as elsewhere, what has that to do with the case? The question is: Are they being provided for as they should be provided for? Sir Robert says they are, or at least that they are getting all they will get so far as the Government is concerned.

William Bowling of 10625 113th St. belongs to a family which has a fine record in service for the Empire. Mr. Bowling's father resides in Perth County, Ontario, and this is what the Perth County Herald has to say regarding him:

"John Bowling, who resides with his daughter, Mrs. C. F. Guthrie, 18 Victoria street, has one son and eight grandsons in khaki uniform. He is very proud of the fact as well he may be. Mr. Bowling's age is 84, but he takes a keen interest in the war."

Premier Borden Explains The Military Service Bill

On the introduction of the Military Service Bill on June 11th Premier Borden gave the following explanation regarding it:

From Hansard report:
Voluntary Enlistment.
As to Canada's determination, there was never one moment's doubt. Our nation was united in her common purpose. Men of all parties expressed a most resolute and vehement determination to carry the war to victory and to an abiding peace. It was the duty of the nation to mobilize and democracy was at stake.
Within six weeks after the war broke out, 33,000 men, fully armed, were ready to depart from our shores. That force was increased by 30,000 men on the 7th day of November, 1914; it was increased to 150,000 in all on the 8th day of July, 1915, and to 250,000 on the 30th day of October, 1915.

In 1915 and also in 1916, many delegates from all parts of the country came to Ottawa and waited upon the government for the purpose of urging compulsory military service. They emphasized with very great force the disadvantage of voluntary enlistment and the need of more men. I realized then and I explained to them possible difficulties, some of which I communicated privately to the leading members of these various delegations.

The Half Million Men.
On the first day of January, 1916, I issued a message to the Canadian people in which I announced that Canada's authorized forces would be increased to 500,000 men. In that message I used these words:

"By the greatness of the need our future efforts must be measured. The necessary order in council was passed on January 12, 1916, and it was laid on the table of the House. No criticism was made in Parliament of the action which the Government took; no motion was moved against the Government's action, and the necessary Parliamentary appropriations were voted unanimously. In many parts of the country, the order in council was construed as a pledge. It was not issued as a pledge; it was the authorization of a further increase in the Canadian Expeditionary Force; but it had been construed as a pledge made on behalf of the Government and the people of this country, and I am content so to regard it.
There was a splendid response to that pledge. In the next seven months more than a hundred thousand men enlisted. The need as it then appeared seemed to be served. But later on it became apparent that the struggle would exceed all anticipations."

Canada's Forces.
Early in February, 1917, I left for England, and in March last I saw at the front the Canadian Expeditionary Force, four divisions, instead of the one division which I had seen in July, 1915. Our forces in France at that time numbered about 130,000 men, including all arms and equipment. The total enlistment during the year ending May 31, 1917, was 58,306, of course only a portion of these men had been called up, and as I have already pointed out, a considerable number enlisted for Railway Construction and Forestry service. During the same year our casualties numbered 75,000, and our reinforcements since the war began amount to 99,639. During April and May we enlisted 11,790 men and during these two months our casualties were 23,325. During the next seven months we need reinforcements to the number of at least 70,000 in order to keep four divisions in the field, and to keep five divisions in the field we need 84,000 men. In both cases principally infantry. Continued offensive operations, such as those of April and May would increase this number, and if the offensive continued much to say that we must expect this.

From Preamble of Bill.
And whereas to maintain and support the Canadian Expeditionary Force engaged in active service overseas for the defence and security of Canada, the preservation of the Empire and of human liberty, it is necessary to provide reinforcements for such Expeditionary Force;

And whereas enough men do not volunteer to provide such reinforcements;

And whereas, by reason of the large number of men who have already left agricultural and industrial pursuits in Canada to join such Expeditionary Force as volunteers and of the necessity of sustaining under such conditions the productivity of the Dominion, it is expedient to secure the men still required for such service draft.

Limit is 100,000.
The first provision to which I ask the attention of the House is section 13, sub-section 4, of the Bill, which provides that the reinforcements to be raised under this Bill shall not exceed 100,000 men, between the ages of 20 and 45.

Selective Conscription.
It may be asked: Why is this law necessary? The answer already exists in the Militia Act. The law is very simple. We have sent 326,000 men overseas in the Canadian Expeditionary Force besides those who have gone to the front in the Armies. The Militia Act provides that the selection shall be by ballot and in no other way. The Government is convinced that a method of selection would be unwise and even dangerous under present conditions and having regard to the number of men required. We propose not to change or enlarge the conscription law, but merely to provide that selection shall not be made by ballot, that is, by blind chance. We are convinced that the selection should be based upon an intelligent consideration of the needs and conditions. We must take into account the necessities of agriculture, of commerce, and of industry. Those who in their present occupations are rendering better service to the state than by enrolment in the Canadian Expeditionary Force must not be selected for military service. There is need for men at the front; there is also need for men at home. The nation's activities essential for winning the war must be maintained. Thus, the only new feature proposed in the Militia Act is that the compulsory clauses in this Bill are precisely of the same character, and based upon the same principles, as those which have been in force in this country since 1862.

Exemptions.
I come now to a very important section, that which concerns exemption. I do not think it necessary that I should read the whole section, but the Bill will shortly be before the members of the House. I shall, however, explain its provisions. The section provides:

(1) At any time before a date to be fixed in the proclamation mentioned in section four, an application may be made, by or in respect of any man, for an exemption called out by such proclamation, to a local tribunal established in the province in which such man ordinarily reside, for a certificate of exemption on any of the following grounds:

(a) That it is expedient in the national interest that the man should, instead of being employed in military service, be engaged in other work in which he is habitually engaged;
(b) That provision, if I remember correctly, is taken from the British Act. It is inserted in that Act at the instance of representatives of organized labor, who were afraid that otherwise there would be power under the Act to affect prejudicially their interests in certain respects. The list of exemptions continues as follows:

(c) That it is expedient in the national interest that the man should, instead of being employed in military service, be engaged in other work in which he wishes to be engaged and for which he has special qualifications;
(d) That the man is engaged in the corresponding section in the British Act. (Reading):

(e) That it is expedient in the national interest that the man should, instead of being employed in military service, be engaged in other work in which he wishes to be engaged and for which he has special qualifications;
(f) That he conscientiously objects to the undertaking of combatant service and is prohibited from so doing by his tenets and articles of faith, in effect at the date of the passing of this Act, of any organized religious denomination existing and well recognized in Canada at such date, and to which he in good faith belongs;

They went forth splendidly in their youth and confidence. They will come back, if they are not killed, and they will be glad to see the day when they are left of 100,000 such men come back to Canada with their consciences clear and their hearts in their hands, and they will be glad to see the day when this Bill becomes law, as for the day when these men return if it is rejected. It is easy to see the wind of change blowing from the west, and the duty and obligation upon all Canadians for the preservation of their country; but those who make that sowing may reap such a whirlwind as they do not dream of today.

ANSWERS

This department does not pretend to be infallible. It will endeavor, however, to answer questions sent to it by readers of The Bulletin to the best of its ability, reserving the right to ignore all that are trifling or of no interest to the majority of our readers. To receive attention, every inquiry must bear the name and address of the querist. This information is not wanted for publication, but as an evidence of good faith.

Nasty Poultry.
To the Bulletin: We are kept awake by the noise made by a neighbor's rooster. We have asked him to do something, but we can get no answer. No notice has been taken of the request. What can we do in the matter?
Reader:

Your neighbor is not supposed to keep any kind of animal which will be an annoyance to those about him, and if he fails to pay attention to your request, take the matter to the police authorities.
Crossing the Border.
To the Bulletin: A young man of military age, Canadian born, but not physically fit, wishes to make a two months' visit to the States. Kindly advise how to proceed to procure the required permission to leave the country. I understand that one gets a form from a postmaster, and has it properly filled in and certified. Does he then take the form with him, and cross the border with it, or does he send it to some one and await the required permission? If so, to what address should he send it? If he is to send it, what address should he send it to? If he is to send it, what address should he send it to?

Ball Lightning.
To the Bulletin: The other night as I was driving, a flash of light occurred which I thought was lightning as it was a little cloudy and having the top of my head on the side of the car a ball of light appeared in my line of vision below the top, travelling toward the ground at a fair rate of speed and appearing to be about 50 feet away from the car. When it was about 10 feet from the ground it burst like a sky rocket, showing various colors. It was about the size of a cricket ball, could tell me what it was and describe the phenomenon related to it?

Soldier's Bonus.
To the Bulletin: Will you kindly favor me by stating if any of the bonuses awarded to discharged soldiers have been paid yet, and if so, to whom should I write regarding it?
Constant Reader.

Could not say as to whether or not any have been received. It will not be necessary for you to write, as the matter will be looked after as soon as the acceptance of the principle of connection with the plan, in the paymaster's department at Ottawa.

Bourassa's Warning.

Their Own Medicine

From the Florida Times-Union:
Now that the Irishmen have been told to settle their own difficulties, they begin to realize what Parliament has been up against.

Still In Danger

From the Ottawa Citizen:
Three members of the Roblin government, including the ex-premier himself, have been freed of criminal charges because they are virtually physical wrecks. But political wrecks from the same administration still endanger the open sea.

The Entertaining Must Wait

From the Springfield Republican:
The British will show kindness to General Pershing and his staff if they do not try to entertain them too much. The theatre and garden parties can wait until after the war.

The Germans' Dilemma

From the London Chronicle:
We are putting the German Generals in the dilemma that they must lose either ground or men. Before Easter they preferred to lose ground; now they are preferring to lose men. Perhaps in the long run the second preference is that which serves our interests best.

Ireland to Decide

From the London Daily Express:
The Government has invited Ireland to find the solution of the Irish problem. Great Britain, speaking through her Prime Minister, has declared her desire that Ireland shall have the government of her own people. Ireland is now fighting for democracy, and it is more than eager to bring every part of the Empire within the democratic orbit. Mr. Lloyd George promises "preparation and restitution." Home Rule. He was among the British Treasury. We are anxious to emphasize the fact that the Prime Minister speaks for the whole of Great Britain. Lord Lansdowne has been, for a generation, a forcible antagonist of Home Rule. He was among the men responsible for the defeat of last year's attempt at a settlement. Now Lord Lansdowne is also among the prophets.

Admiral Sims Was Right

From the Philadelphia Ledger:
In a Memorial Day speech in London Vice Admiral Sims reminded his hearers of his words uttered at the Bullrush in 1910, which drew down on him an official rebuke. He said at that time: "It is my belief that if the time ever comes when the British Empire is seriously menaced by an external enemy its people may count upon every man, every dollar, every ship and every drop of blood in their veins to defend the Empire." Admiral Sims was right. His speech was not a spread-eagle boast, but an accurate prophecy. Every true American stands ready to serve the cause of the enfranchisement of the world's democracy in service to the flag. Life is not dearer than freedom jeopardized or honor brought to bay. Those who stand willing to make the ultimate sacrifice will not hesitate to the Allies all they can give of the material provision to assure the triumph of the right. Soul and body America is in the war. She could not be true to herself and withhold even the smallest obligation from the reddening altars of patriotic sacrifice.

Will Not Be Apologists

From the Halifax Chronicle:
Mr. Frank B. Carvell, the Liberal member for Carleton, N.B., declared himself in favor of the principle of conscription in the House of Commons yesterday. Mr. Carvell, in the course of his cogent and well-reasoned speech, indicted the Government for its absolute failure to measure up to the aspirations of the Canadian people as a war government. He pointed out that parliament had been displayed by the Government in every matter connected with the prosecution of the war and promised that, notwithstanding his vote in favor of the second reading of the conscription Bill, he proposed to continue to criticize the actions of the Government when criticism was needed. If the Government or its supporters think, as seems to be the case, that the acceptance of the principle of conscription binds Liberals to support the Tory party or makes them apologists for the most inefficient, blundering and corrupt Government which ever held office at Ottawa, Mr. Carvell's speech is likely to dispel the illusion.

AUTOCRACY

Editor Bulletin:
Sir—The Calgary Herald of June 18th gives its readers a "special dispatch," which has the sub-heading "Hon. Frank Oliver Occupies a Position That Should Cause Him Shame," and after describing the failure of the federal premier to form a coalition government, wound up with: "Oliver, as Western leader, undoubtedly misrepresented western public sentiment by his action."

But as women have been accorded the vote in this province of which Hon. F. Oliver is the federal leader, and as those women who have suffered the loss of near relatives at the front, and yet endured the further misery of having to aid other loved ones to the war-zone, have a peculiar right to a voice in this matter of conscription (for when a man is killed there, the light of another life goes out with him) will you give me some of your valuable space to say how some of us in the west regard this matter of conscription and Hon. F. Oliver's stand on it.

The questions before the federal house at present are: Is Canada to help win freedom in Europe by destroying freedom at home? As a student of history I know that public opinion may be gaged and nailed for a time; as a student of Canadian national factors I know that the triumph of civilization in Canada may lead to a revolution, no matter what leader tries it.

By the constitution no man can be compelled to fight except for the defence of Canada or to resist invasion. But when powerful nations like the German confederacy start out suddenly to spread butchery and desolation everywhere, hoping to gain control over the world, and when the people of the world are surprised and unprepared, the braver and nobler spirits of the world not waiting for constitutional rulings hurried themselves into the breach to stop the German bandits, and a gang of bandits suddenly fall upon a place, playing and robbing without mercy, no one thinks of the futile project of meeting them with a process of law. But of course, if the world is to be saved, all speed and daring imagination.

But when they have themselves and the situation well in hand, are they going to perpetuate the condition of terror, suspicion and arbitrary power, that characterized the panic induced by the first onslaught of the outlaws? To do so, in our case, is to aid with our own hands, the triumph of the German bandits, and to destroy with our own hands that civilization that our British fathers built up through the blood and tears of our people. For the triumph of British civilization is the triumph of democracy, the progressive freedom of the people. Wherever she has conquered or colonized she has taught her people self-government. And what her people believed in, and in the 17th century, viz., a king to override the constitution, their descendants are not likely to allow any fellow subject to accomplish in the 19th century.

If Sir Robert Borden wishes to give Canadians a square deal, he knows any man given his choice would rather part with his wealth than his life; he can let all those unemployed military service place their wealth on the altar of their country instead of their lives.

AMSTERDAM RIOTS

BRING DEATH TO 5; TROOPS IN CONTROL

Feeling of People in Pro-Entente

—Hoodlums Sack Many Stores

The Hague, July 5, via London, July 6.—The Amsterdam rioting which began with the pillaging of potatoes by women, fathers of families and others, has passed through all the usual stages of political discontent and local lawlessness and is finally pure hoodlomanism. This latter stage is accompanied by pillaging of shops not containing foodstuffs, which has caused the serious uneasiness and resulted in the dispatch of troops to Amsterdam, accompanied by machine guns. Five, and according to one report, seven persons met their deaths by rifle fire in charges of riotous police and cavalry, while a considerable number were more or less severely injured.

Except during the disturbances in Rotterdam there did not appear to have been any specifically anti-English feeling, least of all at Amsterdam. Generally speaking the Dutch population is no wise pro-German; on the whole, they are certainly pro-Entente, if not actually pro-English.

No Need.
"What this country needs—" began the querulous citizen. "Don't tell me!" exclaimed Senator Norghum. "This country has about everything that it can use in its business. And there is one thing it doesn't need at this moment it's some one to collect a crowd and tell it what it needs."—Washington Star.

Not Nonplussed.

"Going far?" asked the talkative one.
"To London," roared the traveller, "I'm in the jewellery line; forty-six and married; name, Horatio Brown; one daughter, nineteen years old, in the Civil Service, gets thirty shillings a week; father died last July; mother is still living; one of my nieces has red hair; our maid has left, but we've got another one. Anything else?"

The talkative one thought for a moment.

"What all do you use on your tongue?" he inquired.

Beatrice—Oo-oo-oo! Lookit! They're makin' that poor man swallow all those old phonograph records!"

Victor—Yes. He used to be a popular song writer, and they're making him eat his words.—Cartoons Magazine.

GERMAN RADICALS' HOPE

COPENHAGEN, July 5.—(Via London, July 6).—"A strong Russian offensive movement is the only hope for a radical change in Germany. The junkers and Thirteenth influence then would crumble quickly. Soon after a strong Russian offensive had disillusioned the German people, they would sue for a just and enduring peace."

"Smashing the Hindenburg Line"
At the Monarch Theatre
Next Week

One of the old-fashioned modes of warfare which has been revived in this most modern and terrible of wars is the use of hand bombs and grenades. The new war film to be shown at the Monarch theatre all next week will enable the public to see what has often been described, but which a schoolboy is more likely to understand than a student of history.

The modern hand bomb is a very deadly "snowball." The French takes the place of the snow fort, but otherwise the difference between the school boy fight with snow forts and snow balls is not very different from the bombing attacks nowadays in France. Young men, only recently schoolboys, hurt deadly missiles in the same old way as a few years ago they hurled snowballs. A bomber has to be quick about taking aim and getting his bomb out of his hands than he needed to be when it was simply a snowball he was throwing, for the fuse is lighted before he throws, and he only has a few seconds before the explosion. And when the bomb falls and bursts it shatters the earth, and men within range are blown to pieces.

"Smashing the Hindenburg Line," the last official British war film of the series, which comes to the Monarch theatre next week for an entire week's run, shows bombing fights, Canadians, as might be expected from their experiences with snowballs, and more particularly perhaps with baseballs, make splendid bombers, and the bombing attacks of the soldiers from this country have had a great deal to do with the success which culminated in the breaking up of the German line, which had stood solidly for two years or more.

DRIVES CHARIOT
AFTER ONLY TWO WEEKS' PRACTICE

Constance Talmadge, the usually attractive young woman who portrays the Mountain Girl of Susanna in D. W. Griffith's colossal spectacle "Intolerance," which is coming to the Empire next week, accomplished what was considered impossible when she learned to drive a two horse chariot in the incredibly short period of two months. Miss Talmadge's characterization of the Mountain Girl is generally conceded to be one of the pronounced hits of Mr. Griffith's mammoth production.

That it was necessary for her to drive a chariot at break-neck speed in advance of the horses of Cyrus, in the vain but heroic attempt to save the man she loves, Belshazzar, and the wonderful city of Babylon from destruction at the hands of the Persians, rendered it most essential that she master the charioteer's art.

Miss Talmadge, who is a veritable daredevil, as well as an all round athlete, a powerful swimmer and an accomplished horse-woman, declared she would prove a proficient charioteer within two months. Two professional charioteers were immediately engaged and Miss Talmadge went at her task with great enthusiasm, practicing at every available moment with the unheard of result that at the end of her self-appointed time, she was driving a two-horse chariot with the same daring skill and speed of the

BILLIE BURKE
NEXT WEEK AT THE MAJESTY

She Will Be Shown At Local Theatre In "Gloria's Romance."

Ida May Park, one of the very few woman directors of motion pictures, went into the great out-of-doors with her company to produce the scenes essential to "The Flashlight," a Bluebird photoplay, which will be the feature film at the Majesty theatre on Monday and Tuesday next. The most picturesque spots in the Sierra Nevada mountains were chosen and the result will be inspiring reflections of the great beauties of the western wilds. The nature-settings promise to add charm to the pictorial telling of an interesting narrative of love and adventure. Heroic deeds are performed amid majestic surroundings; the great woods and towering mountains rise above the rushing streams, and nature is reflected in all its glory by the art and trickery of the camera. "The Flashlight" will prove how tame and unsatisfying interior settings and urban scenes may be when brought into comparison with nature's majestic creations as settings to dramatic scenes.

Without doubt one of the most interesting announcements made in many days is that Miss Billie Burke will make her initial screen appearance in Edmonton this coming week at the Majesty theatre, when she will be seen in "Gloria's Romance." The exquisite gowns this dainty star wears in this production will arouse the admiration of all who see her.

UNIVERSAL SCORES
BEAT ON LANDING
OF GEN. PERSHING

The Universal Corporation has always been noted for the speed with which they turn out "Weeklies" for the motion picture screen, but they have surpassed themselves in the manufacture of a news weekly in the presentation of a picture of General Pershing and the first contingent of American troops landing in France. It was less than two weeks ago that the American commander and his forces reached continental Europe and the subject of welcome such as only the French can give an invited guest.

This afternoon at the Pantages theatre the motion picture of Pershing and his men will be shown on the screen for the first time in Canada as a result of the enterprise of the Universal Corporation. There is only one copy of this weekly in Canada, and Edmonton sees it first. After it is shown here today, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, it will be seen in Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal in the order named.

EMPRESS

"An Enemy to the King"—Vitagraph.
"A Modern Cinderella"—William Fox.

The policy of open booking which Manager Hazza has adopted for the Empress theatre has won many hundreds of new friends for his house during the last five or six weeks, and he is able to announce for next week a program which he has never before been able to equal. Coming Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is the great Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, "An Enemy to the King," in six reels, with the famous E. H. Sothern and Edith Storey in the leading roles. This romantic drama was written by Robert H. Stephens and produced by Mr. Sothern twenty years ago. "The piece contains excellent material for a drama," says Edward Weitzel in The Moving Picture World, "and used sixty years ago by the English playwright, Tom Taylor, in a piece called 'Plot and Passion,' and also utilized by the French dramatist, Victorien Sardou, in 'Fedora,' one of the earliest of his works written for Sarah Bernhardt. With such a brilliant ancestry at its back it is a pleasant duty to record that 'An Enemy to the King' is worthy of its lineage. Laid in the romantic, if somewhat hazardous, period when Henry III was seated on the throne of France and Henry of Navarre was championing the cause of the Huguenots, there are intrigues and counter intrigues, the pursuit of human beings by men with instincts and the compassion of bloodhounds, the flash of swords and the skillful play of thrust and parry with the villain done for and the lovers in each others arms. In adapting this wealth of material to the screen, the form and color of the time have been faithfully retained. There is much fine achievement all through the production."

Bewitching June Caprice will be found more charming than ever in "neglected sister" role which she plays in "A Modern Cinderella," a new and refreshing photoplay from the William Fox studio which will be on the screen Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This radiant star, whose smile was first known when she appeared at the Empress in "Caprice of the Mountains," is liked everywhere, and she acts her latest part with a delightful naturalness. She is ably supported by Frank Morgan. With these two stellar programs there will be a feature comedy, and in addition there is the Pathe Weekly Gazette shown the latter part of the week.

BILL COMING

Tabloid Musical Comedy And Frank Morrell Among The New Features.

A typically shimmering, summery bill is promised patrons of the Pantages theatre next week when "The Other Fellow's Girl," a San Francisco tabloid musical comedy comes for a week's run as headliner. It is presented by a company of fifteen, headed by vivacious Edna Keeley. There are six ensemble singing numbers in the turn and the scenic equipment is massive.

The Six Venetian Gypsies in native costumes appear in the setting of their native city, singing a variety of classical numbers interspersed with some of a popular trend.

Frank Morrell, "the California boy," one of the best blackface comedians who has ever come this way, brings his voice and a repertoire of amusing patter to enliven the occasion, while Claire and Atwood, two well known fun-makers who, unlike Morrell, have never visited this city in vaudeville before, present their inimitable "Bump-de-Bumps" to start the show. Johnny O'Connor and Frank Dixon will follow in "Hired and Fired."

The Universal Weekly and a one reel comedy open the program, which is designed for hot weather audiences.

CANADIAN BAR TO MEET IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, July 6.—The Canadian bar association will hold its third annual meeting in Winnipeg during the last three days of August. Sir James Aikins, the president, is also the chairman of the local arrangements committee.

The Hon. Hampton Carson of the Philadelphia bar, a former attorney general of Pennsylvania, will be the outstanding speaker of the gathering. There are 4,881 lawyers and 323 judges in Canada, and a generous percentage of these will be present at the annual meeting. Among those that are expected to be in attendance from the various parts of Canada are: R. B. Bennett, Calgary; Norman MacKenzie, Regina, vice president for Saskatchewan; T. M. Tweedie, Calgary, and A. H. Clarke, Calgary.

"INTOLERANCE," SUCCESSOR TO GREAT "BIRTH OF A NATION"
AT EMPIRE THEATRE NEXT WEEK

David W. Griffith Surpasses Highest Flights Of Imagination In Greatest Picture—Orchestral Accompaniment And Effects Among Features.

In his great film "Intolerance," which will be presented at the Empire all next week starting Monday Matinee, D. W. Griffith has visualized imaginings such as one might have after reading the Arabian Nights, but never expected to enjoy except in fancy. There are not superlatives enough to do justice to this creation, particularly that part of it recreating ancient Babylon and showing the scenes attendant upon the taking of that city by Cyrus the Great and his horde of Persians.

Mr. Griffith in "Intolerance," with its four parallel, so-called stories, has set a mark in spectacular motion picture production that may never be surpassed. It is safe to assert that if it surpassed it will be done by Mr. Griffith himself, and not by any of his rivals, clever and resourceful as some of them are because "Intolerance" is so much vaster in conception and more masterly in execution than anything which has gone before that it is logical to assume that anything bigger will come from the brain which gave it birth.

The ethical purpose of "Intolerance," as its name suggests, is to show that narrowness and bigotry and lack of human sympathy have been responsible from earliest times until now for most of the misery under which the world has staggered.

The historical incidents taken by Mr. Griffith to illustrate this truth are the betrayal of Babylon to the Persians by the priests of Baal; the persecution and crucifixion of Christ; the parallel modern story shows how the Pharisees and bigots of today, including the holier-than-thou reformers, retard social progress and make a mockery of law and justice.

Each of the separate stories has its separate characters and each in turn is interrupted to give way to one of the others. The whole is intended to show the prevalence and the iniquity of intolerance in all ages.

The most spectacular features of the entire picture relate to Babylon and its fall. The battle scenes, introducing all the ancient methods of warfare, are on an indescribably stupendous scale. How many persons are employed in the picture no one but the director himself probably knows. There seemed to be thousands and then millions, Daredevil feats were numerous and the turmoil and excitement of some of the scenes became almost maddening.

"LITTLE AMERICAN"
IDEAL PICTURE FOR PATRIOTIC SHOWING

The Artcraft exhibitors throughout America have made special preparations for the presentation of Mary Pickford's big patriotic picture, "The Little American," which comes to the Monarch theatre the week of July 10. Heralded as a great patriotic cinema, the new vehicle of "America Sweetheart," staged under the personal direction of Cecil B. DeMille, in collaboration with army officers of the Allied forces, offers an ideal production for presentation right now. The appeal of this spectacular photoplay is announced, is particularly timely and deals with the present great war. Battle scenes of proportions and faithfulness depicting past incidents in connection with the great conflict, together with startling views as evidenced in No Man's Land are promised by the producers, presenting several revelations in motion picture technique as introduced by Cecil B. DeMille. It is felt by many that this production from the pen of Jeanie MacPherson will create a sensation in proportion with that evinced by "Joan the Woman." At the Strand theatre, New York, and other motion picture houses throughout America the managers have started special campaigns in the exploitation of this picture because of its patriotic value. This film has probably established a new record in the way of advance advertising, many theatres even in the smaller towns having commenced to advertise it a month prior to its appearance.

News of the Boys' Clubs Of the City Churches

That a boy police force be formed in this city has been suggested to the city authorities concerned. If this suggestion is carried out, Edmonton will rank among the first cities to have such an organization. The scheme was originally the plan of Captain Sweeney of the New York police force to turn future gangsters and bad men into good citizens. All officers are first offenders. Captain Sweeney has shown them the error of their ways and has persuaded them to join his police force.

If such a force were to become a reality in the city of Edmonton, it would be able to attend to duties which the regular police are unable to look after.

The New York organization has adopted the following duties:

1. Prevent swearing and the use of vulgar language in streets and public places.
2. Prevent the building of bonfires in the streets.

3. Prevent boys from breaking windows and street lamps and defacing buildings and sidewalks with chalk.
 4. Prevent boys from smoking cigarettes and playing crap.
 5. Prevent boys from engaging in dangerous and unlawful play.
 6. Prevent the placing of obstructions on fire escapes.
 7. Prevent the mixing of ashes, garbage and paper.
 8. See that garbage cans are kept covered and that ash and garbage cans are removed from the sidewalk when emptied.
 9. Request persons to keep the sidewalk and areaway in front of their buildings clean, and not to throw refuse into the street.
 10. Make special effort to perform duties 6, 7, 8 and 9 at your own homes. See that your parents and relatives do not violate laws and ordinances.
 11. For the above duties do not enter any building under an condition.

SYLVAN LAKE CAMP.
A camp for the older boy leaders of the province, representatives will be there from all over Alberta. Those from Edmonton are: Christ church—J. Hall, E. Gowan, Westminster—W. Day, W. Heirly, McDonnell Methodist—J. Kennedy, First Presbyterian—W. Mutton, Knox—C. MacKinnon, Highland Park—W. Marks, M. Dalis, Eastwood Methodist—J. E. Turner.

Clayton Rundle, our former editor for this page, has gone away for his holidays. Our good wishes go with him.

Excelsiors (St. Paul's).
The most important occurrence of our meeting on Tuesday was the reading by our mentor of a letter from a soldier to his son, the theme of which was the father's advice to his boy, advice which followed very closely that of C.S.E.T. principle, the plan of four-fold development.

In view of the fact that our Sunday school picnic is held today (Saturday), we thought it well not to attempt anything other than lending our assistance at the picnic, this week; save, of course, adding to our collections, and other similar affairs which will progress as usual.

Our athletic efforts in the baseball line will suffer a setback during Exhibition week, as our pitcher and others are participating in that only event at the Fair, the "March Past" of the Allies.

Owing to the absence of the secretary of the Boys' Dept. all baseball matters will be attended to by Victor Johnson, phone 1933.

Highland Park Beavers.
The Highland Park Beavers about a dozen strong, are in camp at "The Old Swimming Hole" near the Clover Road. Lieut. Col. Marks is in supreme command and is ably assisted by Field Marshall McDonald, who does the cooking. Several other officers of note are members of the staff and altogether there is a distinctly military atmosphere around the place.

Joahans (South Side Baptists).
Our class has been depleted of several of its members lately as they have gone away. We hope that the remainder will keep coming.

The dam at the swimming pool in Mill Creek is almost finished but the bottom of the pool has to be scraped yet. We hope they hurry the work along.

Our baseball team has been broken up so we will probably not be able to play the rest of our games.

Owing to wet weather and an accident which occurred disabling one of our team we have been unable to participate in the baseball games at the scheduled time. However we are going to come back with such force that we expect to carry all the other teams off their feet and win the league with flying colors.

H. J. K. Club.
I wonder if the other clubs will find it hard to keep track of their boys in the first lap of the greats of all days when the worry and midnight visions of the exams, that troubled us by day and hounded and distressed our night repose, only a little more than a week ago, are now so easily forgotten and I feel that we are all alike when we say, "What care we for books or dates?"

About the only thing that it worth seeing just now is a fishing rod or a nice clean lake with lots of sand beaches. This reminds us of what some of our club boys will feel like when they arrive at the C.S.E.T. camp at Sylvan Lake. We regret that we cannot have more boys there but we feel that those who have this privilege of attending such a great camp will come back with a new vision of what manner of boys we are striving to become, and that the help they will be able to render carrying on the work next winter will put us so far in advance that we will come out next spring post-graduates in the Standard Efficiency tests program. Well boys I take this opportunity of saying farewell for a couple of weeks for your humble correspondent expects to be one of the lucky bunch and a few days hence will be reclining somewhere on the shores of Sylvan Lake.

Wesley Wins.
The Wesley baseball team defeated McDougall at Victoria Park by the score of 13 to 6. The game was quite fast and interesting though there was considerable wrangling during its progress. There were only 2 or 3 two-base hits made, each team getting one. Jud Kennedy did some very good pitching for McDougall, despite that his team worried him quite a bit more than they encouraged him. Gus Howie who was in the box for Wesley pitched good ball and also did some splendid fielding. The line-up for Wesley was

Today We Celebrate

Hanging of Lincoln's Assassins.

On July 7, 1865, Mrs. Mary E. Surratt, Lewis Payne, David E. Harold and George A. Atzerodt, who, with John Wilkes Booth, had conspired to kill Abraham Lincoln and his secretary of state, William H. Seward. Booth, as is well known, was shot to death in the barn from which he made his flight after his flight from Washington, when his murderous attempt upon the great president's life had succeeded. The four other conspirators were rounded up within a short time and placed on trial. There were more persons implicated in the conspiracy than just these four, particularly John H. Surratt, son of the woman who was tried and convicted. The son, however, escaped the gallows. A very interesting story was told some time ago by Lieut. Col. Christian Rath, concerning the hanging of those convicted. He had charge of the hanging. Rath at the time took an oath not to tell what he knew of the Lincoln conspirators and kept his oath for forty-six years. He was relieved of his oath several years ago. According to Rath, the march to the gallows was headed by Mrs. Surratt, walking between two priests. She was dressed in black and heavily veiled. The priests carried crosses in their hands and were reading the service for the dead. Four soldiers followed her. Behind them came Atzerodt, "used by soldiers and accompanied by a Lutheran priest. He had chains upon his ankles and these clanked as he walked unsteadily toward the gallows. Then followed Harold, Booth's attendant on the night of his flight. He was a very hot and said to have cringed like a coward. Last came Payne, who was absolutely fearless. Lieut. Col. Rath, telling his own story of the further proceedings, says: "When the nooses had been adjusted and caps pulled over their heads, I waited for some time before giving the signal for knocking the posts from under the drop." Col. Rath hoped that a pardon or reprieve might come for Mrs. Surratt. But none came and at a given signal the drops fell and the four bodies shot down in unison. The bodies were put in boxes and buried. Rath personally taking the noose from Mrs. Surratt's neck and placing her in her coffin. The work of execution consumed in all about one hour.

10th Anniversary of Annexation.
Nineteen years ago today Hawaii came under the protection of the Stars and Stripes and has been glad of it ever since. Long before that eventful July 7, 1898, the inhabitants of that island had been claiming to be part of the United States, but circumstances prevented. The step that led to the immediate desire for annexation was taken by Queen Liliouokalani herself. On Jan. 14, 1893, she announced additions to the constitution of Hawaii which deprived all white citizens of the right to vote unless they were married to Hawaiian women. (That was before the days when "they were wearing them higher in Hawaii.") The United States Minister, J. L. Stevens, in order to prevent disorders, ordered in the marines from the U. S. S.

The Man Who Wouldn't be King

The International Sunday-School Lesson For July 8th is:
"Ahas, The Faithless King"—II Chron. Chap. 28
By William T. Ellis.

While mulling over this lesson I met in a dining car yesterday a young man, who, somehow, fixed himself in my mind as an up-to-date King Ahas. Perhaps the comparison is unfair to my pleasant spoken acquaintance. He was a tall, handsome, red-headed, young American, who had been a football player at one of the great eastern colleges. Doubtless at least two women consider him a model young man.

Nevertheless, as he talked entertainingly about things in general, I perceived that here was a young man, of royal equipment and opportunity who had never got a firm grip on essential values. I do not question his personal morality, but on moral and ethical issues he was as wobbly as King Ahas. This war, for instance, frankly bored him. He could not see why the nations should not call it off at once. It is killing a lot of fine young men, and it should be stopped right away. There is really nothing at stake worth fighting for. I made some effort, but I fear in vain, to help this handsome young athlete to perceive that there are now in contest certain great moral and ethical and spiritual issues that are more important than even his comfort and convenience, and that it is better far for a man to die nobly than to live in ignominious indifference to the supreme values. The least of all the wounded Canadian soldiers, returning from France, who passed us some miles east is a greater man by eternal standards than this favored son of opportunity, who apparently has no standards concerning which he is not willing to negotiate.

Mr. Red-Headed Athlete is one of the men—they are few, thank God—of whom Ahas was an ancient type. They are crowned, but fling their crowns into the mire. They are selfish, craven, truckles. What is easy makes more appeal to them than what is right. They would rather be popular and successful than true. Their birthright is openly in the market place. To "get along" means more to them than their integrity. They are the conformers; who are ever the heaviest burden that Progress carries upon its shoulders.

A Man on the Monuments.

This King Ahas, who reigned more than twenty-five hundred years ago, in the little kingdom of Judah has the interesting distinction of being known to history not only for the records of the Old Testament, but also from the Assyrian monuments. The archaeologist's spade has dug up the cuneiform records cut in stone, of the triumph of Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, who once brought Ahas to heel. Thus the inspired story of the decadent king's defeat is confirmed by evidence from the sands of Mesopotamia, which is the sort of evidence, strangely enough, that a sceptical world is more ready to accept than it is that of the clear pages of Holy Writ.

So Ahas got a reputation, but it was a bad one. Ambitious for distinction, and with a vanity that would sacrifice all things in order to stand well in the world, Ahas really succeeded only in winning infamy. He has left an imperishable name, but it is an odious one. History uses him as a red flag to hang on the pathway of time as a danger signal. What a horrible fate it is, to have missed noble success and to win an immortality of shame.

Historically, Ahas and his kingdom are less important than homilethically. They serve their chief end in showing the ways of God with men. As a king, Ahas is the type of a long line, who, apart from their mission of being bearers of God's Promise to the race, were no more important than ten thousand other monarchs who have lived and died and been forgotten. But as a type, Ahas has his present use. He stands forth vividly as one who could not play the king-game in king-fashion. He lost his crown and his soul.

Fathers and Sons.
Now that the war is consuming the flower of many lands, we are facing certain great biological facts about fathers and sons. Ahas represents a real problem in this. He was the father of a good son. It looks rather as if, in things of character, every life stands on its own feet. In his meaty little book, "The Many-sided David," Philip E. Howard deals with this question, and he quotes the conclusion reached by quaint old Thomas Fuller upon the subject. "I see Lord, from hence, Father's piety cannot be envied; that is bad news for me. But I see, also, that actual impiety is not always hereditary. That is good news for my son."

For every father who is grieving tonight for a son dead in France, I still feel the pressure of the hand-clasp of one such; there are two who are mourning that their sons have played the fool, and gone, like Ahas, into the great conformity of sin. It should be an influence with every noble boy that he has his father's happiness in his keeping. A reasonable incentive to clean living is the joy that will be brought to a father's heart. No rake ruins himself alone; he brings hurt and shame upon the one whom it is his first duty to protect. Of the other delicate and allied question, the disgrace which Fathers sometimes bring upon sons, I do not here write.

Ahas and Broadway.
One thing essentially was wrong with Ahas: his mind was muddled. His thinking was foggy and he had no clear vision of the absolute pre-eminence of right. Instead of having clear convictions, to which he would hold in spite of life and death and hell, he had only a weakling's desire to be in the vogue of the hour. Ahas would have made a typical Broadway idler, for the display of the latest fashion in clothes and vices like the habitus of Broadway, his law was "what they say."

Of course, the young person who would rather be popular than right; who would rather walk in the fashion than in his integrity is on a toboggan slide to destruction. The devil loses no sleep over the person whose chief aim in life is to do what everybody else is doing. Straight to the issue of issues in our own day, the example of Ahas takes us. He gave up the God of his fathers for the sake of the gods of the neighboring heathen because he was afraid of being "peculiar" and wanted to be popular. He wanted to be wanted to vote with the majority party. No other temptation quite like this ever comes to a young man or woman. It is the deadliest besetment that awaits the feet of youth.

This is the trap that snares so many of our sons and daughters as they leave home for the great cities. Broadway, to the unsophisticated eyes, bulks bigger than Sinai. The song of the Valley of Pleasure, "Everybody's Doing It," sounds loud in their ears than the sermon on the Mount.

Battleships and armies are less important to a nation than the ideals of its youth. We greet with gratitude the attitude which the Christian nations in this war are assuming with respect to the moral welfare of the boys in uniform. Whosoever is unwilling to idealize in youth is serving the state and time. By contrast, King Ahas calls to mind Tennyson's portrayal of King Arthur's ideal for his knights.

I make them lay their hands in mine and swear
To reverence the King as if he were
Their conscience and their conscience
To break the heathen and uphold
The Christ.
To ride abroad redressing human wrongs,
To speak no slander, no, nor listen
To honor his own word as if his God's,
To lead sweet lives in purest chastity,
To love one maiden only, cleave to her,
And worship her by years of noble deeds.
Until they won her; for indeed I know
Of no more subtle passion under heaven
Than the maiden passion for a maid.
Not only high thought, down the base in man,
But teach him keep, and amiable words,
And courteousness, and the desire to
And love of truth and all that makes a man."

Going the Limit.
If Ahas had been a modern, educated young man, he would have accepted Nietzsche as his philosophy. The god of Syria gave success; ergo, he would worship him. Anything for success. There was no limit of heathendom to which he would not go. This was the king worshipped the idols of his neighbors, set up their shrine among God's people, and even adopted Moloch, the fieriest god to whom children were sacrificed.

All the heathen practices against which the very existence of the Jewish nation was a protest, were accepted by this popularity-seeking, time-serving young king. All sense of sanctity seemed gone from him for he withheld not the treasures of the temple from his conquerors. When a good man goes wrong, he sometimes goes farther wrong than the one who never held his ideals. This peril is in front of every Christian. They fall farthest and hardest when they fall from a height. There are no prodigals like those who have come from noblest homes. Ahas is an admonition. There is a terrible possibility for bad in the best of us, and a glorious possibility of good in the worst of us.

A Nervous Breakdown

Can be Averted by Feeding the Starved Nerves With Rich, Red Blood.

Nourish your nerves—that is the only way you can overcome life's worst misery, nervous exhaustion. The first of depression and irritation, the prostrating headaches, the weakness and trembling of the legs, the unsteady hand and the imperfect digestion that mark the victim of nerve weakness, must and in nervous breakdown if neglected.

Nourish your nerves by the natural process of filling your veins with rich, red, health-giving blood. Your nerves are crying out for pure blood, and the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is to make new, rich blood.

This explains why these pills have proved successful in the most cases of nervous diseases that did not yield to ordinary treatment. For example, Mr. Wilfrid Donald, West Flamboro, Ont., says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was in a serious condition. I was not only badly run down, but my nerves seemed to be completely shattered. I slept badly at night, and when I got up in the morning was as tired as when I went to bed. I seemed to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown. At this stage I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the course of a few weeks I felt much relief, and continuing the use of the pills, my nerves gradually recovered their health. I can now sleep soundly, eat well, and am enjoying complete freedom from the old nervous troubles."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Buy According to Food Values!

"If we do not economize in food stuffs we stand a grave chance of losing the war."
Herbert C. Hoover,
Chairman of the Belgian Relief Committee.

WHEN you have nothing else to do with your money, it may be alright to spend it on extravagant food and out-of-season delicacies. But now—in this critical year of the war—there are more important uses for it!

Save it by purchasing economically—and to do this, study food values. You will be surprised to know how extravagant some supposedly cheap foods are, and how some that seem high are really more economical. These true values are brought out clearly in a new National Service pamphlet, "How to Live in War Time," which we will gladly send you on request.

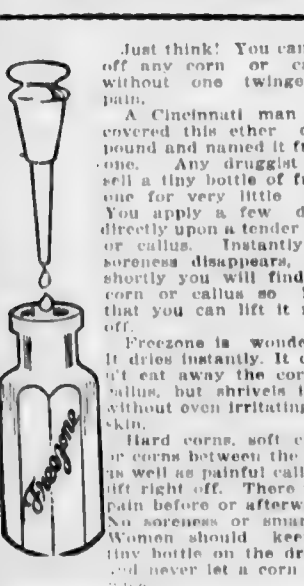

Under present conditions careless buying is worse than wasteful. It encourages still higher prices, and makes conditions harder yet for the less fortunate who are already feeling the pinch.

Buy carefully for their sake—for your own sake—and for your country! Canada needs every dollar you can save and invest in Canadian War Savings Certificates. Buy these certificates at any Bank or Money Order Post Office, at $21.50, $43 or $86. In three years you will get back $25, $50 or $100, respectively—which means over 5% interest. Or you can get your money back at any time you need it.

A Drop On a Touchy Corn

Instant relief! Then corn or callus lifts off with fingers.

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without one twinge of pain.

Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it Freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of Freezone for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dissolves instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. No soreness or smarting. Women should keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn ache again.

Today's Anniversaries

On July 7, 587 B.C., historians place the date when Jerusalem, with its temples, palaces and walls razed to the ground, was the scene of the carrying off into captivity of its inhabitants, and the entire Jewish monarchy terminated, after it had stood for 488 years from the accession of David.

On the same date in the year 1607 the British national anthem, "God Save the King," was written by Ben Johnson and composed by Dr. Bull. It was first sung in Merchant Taylors' Hall in London by the choir of the royal chapel, the king being present.

On July 7, 1840, the inhabitants of Providence, R.I., united in forming a civil government after their own model.

One hundred and three years ago today, on July 7, 1814, the three estates of the British realm offered public thanks at St. Paul's for the peace of Europe.

PROUD POLICE BOYS MARCH IN FIFTH AVE.

2000 Volunteers in New York Are Reviewed by Commissioner Woods

New York, July 6.—New York for the first time saw its boy policemen on parade yesterday. Close to 2,000 of them in olive drab uniforms of the Junior Police marched down Fifth Avenue and were reviewed at Madison Square by Commissioner Woods. Ranging anywhere in age from 11 to 16 years, almost every boy had his mother, father, or some other member of the family in the crowd to feel proud of him.

To many spectators along the line of march, the Junior Police was something unknown until they saw them on parade yesterday. Many questions could be heard as to who they were and what they were for, and some even had the impression that the "Juniors" assisted the regular policemen in running down law breakers and making arrests.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, the committee in charge of the parade distributed a lot of literature along the line of march with information as to the exact functions of the Junior Police. In these pamphlets the public was informed that one of the activities of the Junior Police was to practice in their daily lives safety regulations which should be known to every boy in every family.

The Junior Policeman never jumps off a moving car and knows that he must get on with the right hand and left foot, and get off with the left hand and right foot. He always keeps a wary eye out for traffic. He does not engage in street fights, or build fires, or play on the fire-escapes and unprotected roofs. He is also instructed to regard the policeman as his best friend and what they were for, and some even had the impression that the "Juniors" assisted the regular policemen in running down law breakers and making arrests.

There are actually about 4,000 boys organized in the Junior force. Only half of them were on parade yesterday because the others have not yet been supplied with uniforms. The geographical unit of organization is the city police precinct, of which there are eighty-seven in New York City. The minimum membership for any precinct is twenty-one and the maximum limit is the total of boys between 11 and 15 years of age. Any boy between those ages is eligible to membership in the precinct organization and becomes a member after promising to obey the pledge, motto, and duties of the organization. The motto is "Be Trustworthy, Be Honest, Be Loyal, Be Polite."

Twenty-two precincts of the Junior Police were represented in the line march. For the big boys, the parade was a lark and they enjoyed every minute of it, as was apparent from the demure manner in which they kept their chests forward on marching, their feet a bit. Most of them picked up their strength, however, on seeing the Police Commissioner, who rushed hat and saluted them repeatedly.

After the parade, Commissioner Woods said he was convinced that the Junior Police movement was doing great deal to develop manliness, civic pride in the boys of the city.

"It not only makes the boys be boys by keeping them off the street and teaching them to accept the responsibility for their own conduct," said the Commissioner, "but it makes the boys helpful to the city departments in that they try to maintain healthful, sanitary and orderly conditions in their various neighborhoods."

COWAN'S COCOA

"Perfection Brand"

"MADE IN CANADA"

We all appreciate tea and coffee, but after all, these beverages are merely pleasant, slightly stimulating drinks, with little or no food value. And you know, to your cost, how their prices are soaring!

The food value of Cocoa, on the other hand, is higher than even that of Beef Extract, Chicken Soup or Bouillon. In Great Britain this has been recognized for generations. Physicians recommend Cocoa as a great body-builder, particularly for growing children. Our soldiers swear by Cocoa and Chocolate as quick and ready sources of strength in times of extra strain or food shortage.

At the price your grocer will ask you for COWAN'S Perfection Cocoa and at the price this amounts to per cup, it is a most economical as well as a most delightful food-drink. For breakfast—luncheon—supper—or a bedtime snack, you'll enjoy it immensely, and if you use it regularly you'll notice quickly the benefit to your health.

Give the kiddies plenty of COWAN'S Cocoa at every meal—see their eyes sparkle—and watch them thrive! For confections give them COWAN'S Milk Chocolate and Maple Buds, they are really economical food!

When you serve COWAN'S, less of other foods is necessary, thus conserving the food resources of the country and at the same time, saving money.

We recommend that the money saved from household expenses be invested in War Savings Certificates, which the Government now offers at $21.50, paying $25.00 in three years time. Every dollar you save will help to win the war.

In the World of Labor

THIS month there will be only one meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, and that will fall on Monday week, at the usual time and place, the Central Labor Hall on 101st street. Dominion Day happened to fall on the customary meeting night, that is the first Monday in the month, and after the meeting had been postponed it was decided to hold only one gathering for this month.

The latest to be added to the charters decorating the walls of the Labor hall is that of the civic employees, which was hung this week. The charter was granted by the Dominion Trades Congress of Canada, and is for "Civic Employees Federal Union No. 30."

A good deal of interesting discussion is likely to be heard at the meeting of the Labor Representation League, which will be held at the Central Labor Hall on Monday evening next. Should a Dominion election happen along the League members say that they are sure of having a candidate in the field.

"We would welcome a general Saturday half-holiday," say a good many officials and responsible employees connected with Edmonton's industries. The opinion is that the city is in a very unsatisfactory position in regard to the week-end holiday. Some employees get it and some do not, some have it at 1 p.m. and others work to a clock on Saturday. It is not unlikely that council will be asked to take the matter in hand, and if it has the power, to enforce early closing in connection with industrial concerns. If this section can be dealt with in such a way perhaps it would not be long before the whole-salers and other business houses of the city came into line with similar requests.

ORGANIZATION of the stenographers working in business houses in the city is going to be taken up very actively in the immediate future. Although Calgary did not succeed very well in getting the stenographers together, the labor officials at Edmonton are determined that this city shall succeed and that the stenographers will be drawn within the fold. They point to the fact that it was said that the retailers could not be organized, yet now the Retail Clerks' Association is one of the strongest locals in the city.

Members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers employed by the Canadian Pacific Railroad are demanding wages increases that will approximate 25 per cent.

TODAY it is estimated that there are 11,000,000 women and girls at work in American industries. In England, since July, 1914, 1,071,000 women have directly replaced men in gainful occupations. This means that the increase of 22.7 per cent. during the war over the number of breadwinning women when war broke out. If this should happen in the United States, and the war should last three years—these may be utilized at least 3,597,000 new women workers, which would mean a total of nearly fifteen million women gainfully employed.

A present 600 International Typographical Union members in the Canadian locals are fighting in France for America and her allies in the cause of freedom and many members in the United States have joined the colors. All are protected by the organization. Margaret L. Scott, president, and Walter W. Barrett, first vice-president, of the International Typographical Union, are now engaged in a vigorous campaign in the Eastern States in the interest of fair co-operation in the printing industry. This campaign is conducted principally among the job printers. In connection with the work of the union, Vice-President Barrett, said:

"The International Typographical Union is the ideal organization of workers in this country. Its main policy is the settlement of all disputes through the medium of arbitration. For 17 years we have had international arbitration agreements with the American Newspaper Publishing Association. By reason of that agreement disputes have been minimized and industry has flourished. Our members, by an overwhelming majority, an international agreement to govern book and job offices. With this agreement in effect, no dispute has arisen in this branch of the industry. This is the same principle that has been observed in the newspaper branch during the past 17 years. We have had a prosperous year. Earnings of our membership have been far in excess, this year, of any previous year."

New arrivals among Edmonton typists, are Mr. Duncan, a returned soldier from Toronto; Mr. Pettipiece, of Vancouver; and Mr. Culhane, a former printer, who has been up in the northwest country for a couple of years.

Edmonton's Allied Labor Committee are launching another aggressive campaign upon some of the different lines than previously practised.

REGINA has adopted the idea of the returned soldiers and the first meeting of the committee from Trades and Labor Council and the Great War Veterans Association, which was held at the first meeting most of the time was given over to getting acquainted. It is time that the proposed Edmonton meeting was arranged.

THE Regina hello girls organized by the Trades Council Organization committee. There were about 50 girls present and after short addresses the work was started. A letter was drafted asking the government for an increase in wages for the scale now is $35.00 minimum, the girls have asked that this be raised to $50 for a minimum. Owing to the absence of the minister handling this matter no action has been taken.

A PLEBISCITE on the two-plant system for firemen in Vancouver resulted in the proposal being turned down by a vote of 1,107 to 1,517. The vote, however, was limited to property owners and is more disappointing to the opponents of the two-plant system than to the firemen. The union is now taking steps to appeal to the Industrial Disputes act for a board to take up their complaint about the working conditions.

THE street car strike in Vancouver lasted nine days, during which time not an electric car moved. Every demand of the men was granted in the settlement. It is said that a bargain was struck with members of the city council to take steps to put the crimp in the jitney in the future.

IN THE European countries in the first year of the war employers in all lines were given permission to work women long hours and seven days a week, but at the end of the first 12 months' period it was conclusively shown that the productive powers of the workers had greatly decreased and that they were turning out inferior work. In fact, the conditions were such that these countries were more than glad to restore the eight-hour day for women workers and also a six-day week.

Sidelights on the War

Tom Benoit's Death. We have all heard of the great athlete who will risk his life in all sorts of dangerous stunts and then tumble over a peanut shell and break his neck. A similar fate overtook Tom Benoit, one of the foremost aviators in the United States, and his loss is all the greater because the need for such men at the present time is greater. Benoit had taken his life in his hands, or rather in his flying machine, thousands of times. He had done all the stunts known to airmen and come through without an accident. And then he had to look out of a trolley car window while the car was in motion and smash his head against a telegraph pole. He was a pioneer at the flying game. He had no one to show him how to do things, but studied them all out himself. At the time of his death, he was building aeroplanes and had a school at Sandusky, Ohio, where he was imparting his knowledge to the fledglings of the aviation game. Uncle Sam has certainly lost a most valuable helper through Benoit's death.

John D. Rockefeller's Birthday. John D. Rockefeller, the well known golf player, is celebrating his birthday today, quietly, as usual. He never was fond of pomp and all his millions have not changed his tastes in that direction. For all his seventy-nine years, and that is his age today, John D. plays as fine a game of golf as you would wish to see. He firmly believes that the game has kept him in health, and is very likely right. He hasn't been wrong on any thing, has John D. He has to date given away so many millions that it would make your head swim merely to try and figure them up. The latest donation, made through the Rockefeller Foundation, the clearing house for all his charities, was $5,000,000 to the Red Cross. He just simply donates sums like that and doesn't even notice it. He's got another five millions or even more in his other vest pocket ready for some other worthy charity. Incidentally, the name of the town he was born in is Richford. It's in Tioga county, N. Y. Wonder whether there really isn't something to be learned in a town with a name like that?

PREMIER TO BE OPPOSED. CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., July 6.—Premier Arsenault will be opposed in the bye-election in the third district of Prince Edward Island on the 25th instant, by E. H. Delaney, of Wellington. Mr. Delaney was nominated by the Liberals yesterday.

ADDITION TO WAR CABINET. LONDON, July 6.—Andrew Bonar Law said in the house of commons today that his duties as chancellor of the exchequer did not prevent him to give as much time as he would like to the work of the war cabinet. As a result he believed, the premier would have to make an addition to the war cabinet.

What Does It Cost to Crank Your Auto. ?

One of the very definite costs in the operation of an automobile, according to the proprietor of the Willard Service Station, is electrical current.

"Most motorists," says Mr. Blais, of the Motor Car Supply Co., the local Willard Service Station, "are inclined to regard the electrical current with which they crank their engine and light their road at night, as a free gift of the manufacturer. Something which, like the frame or wheels of their car, is part of the car and needs no attention whatever."

"To a certain degree, if a motorist is careful, the electric current consumed is almost a gift. It is a by-product of the energy of the motor. But, the battery which holds the energy in readiness for instant use, will not last forever. It is going to wear out in time. The price of a battery, then, spread over the length of time that the battery lasts, might be called the cost of the electric current.

"Added to this are other necessary costs. For instance, the wise motorist has his battery taken down and thoroughly inspected, and perhaps the insulation renewed every season. This adds to the cost of electric cranking and lighting. In winter if he stores his car he will see that his battery is left in safe hands. This means storing at the Willard Service Station or in a similar place, in charge of a battery expert. This again adds to the cost of electricity on the automobile.

"The motorist who realizes the importance of his storage battery, has no further cost than this. Care is necessary, however, if he is to keep his battery cost at this minimum. He must see to it that his battery is filled regularly with the hydrometer syringe, either doing this himself or letting the service station do it. He should take advantage of all the battery service that is offered by battery manufacturers, for by keeping in touch with service stations and letting the expert look the battery over, he is very frequently able to forestall battery trouble. He should see that his battery is neither starved nor overheated. In short, he should keep an eye on his battery and give the same attention that he does the other parts of his machine.

"Of course, the cost of the electric conveniences on an automobile varies with the car-owner. A doctor, for instance, who makes short runs and many stops, naturally involving a great deal of cranking, must assuredly have his battery charged occasionally at the service station; for the machine has not run far enough to allow the generator to restore the energy to the battery that is used after cranking. The man who does a lot of driving at night and practically none in the day will frequently find it necessary to have his battery charged. "The cost of this charging, outside the car, must again be added to the maintenance cost of the car and to the cost of operating electric conveniences.

"The point is this: To keep the cost of the electricity at the lowest possible point, the owner must take care of the battery. He must not expect the battery to last as long as the mechanical parts of his car; and just as regularly as he has the engine torn down to insure its perfect running, so he should have his battery torn down to insure perfect efficiency. By these means alone he can keep his cost at the minimum."

PLANS ARE MADE FOR BIG AUTO CONVENTION IN CALGARY AUG. 3; MOTOR RUN TO BE MADE TO BANFF

Committee to Further Organization Holds Meeting and Discusses Suggestions For Convention—All Parts of Province Are Expected to be Represented at Meeting in August.

A meeting of the Provincial Automobile Club Organization committee was held in Calgary Thursday morning, July 5th, to arrange for a proposed convention.

The committee suggested that the organization be known as the "Alberta Automobile Association," and that the symbol of the three "A's" be adopted, subject to the confirmation of the convention.

It was moved by Geo. H. Webster, seconded by Roy Cowan, of Lethbridge, that the secretary of the Calgary Automobile Club, be requested to issue invitations to all known organized automobile clubs in Alberta, to send from one to three delegates, and that he also take steps to advertise in the public press in order to cover the entire province, inviting auto owners from any city, town or village, in the province which has not yet an organized club, to send delegates to the convention, which is to be held at the Palliser hotel, Calgary, on Friday, August 3rd, at 8 o'clock in the evening. Carried.

The calling of this convention is the outcome of a widely expressed desire, from all parts of the province, that some form of organization of automobile owners be formed for the purpose of attaining the objects which have been gained by similar organizations throughout Canada and the United States, which have been eminently successful and to the advantage of all automobile owners. These objects cannot be attained, it is pointed out, unless a live Automobile Club is formed in each locality, and is represented by a Provincial-wide organization, such as is suggested by this committee.

It is the desire of this committee that the officers and executive to be elected, will be representative of the entire province, and that places of all future meetings and conventions will be left absolutely to the decision of the convention; the idea being that an effective and representative Provincial organization may be formed.

It is suggested by this committee that among the matters to be taken up at the convention are, the election of officers, appointment of necessary committees, the question of assisting in the organization of local clubs at points where clubs do not exist, and to discuss the all important question of good roads—this point involving the consideration of past and future legislation affecting roads, the proper expenditure of money now appropriated for good roads conventions, and any suggestion or action with this object in view, also any other questions which might be brought up by delegates, and which are of general interest to automobile owners.

The automobile road between Banff and Calgary is now in first-class condition, and the committee recommends that delegates, and all automobilists who drive their cars to this convention, take this opportunity of running up to Banff. The idea of calling this convention on a Friday is to give automobilists an opportunity to spending the week-end at the great National playground.

The officials of the Park Department of the Department of the Interior have set the first week in August as Automobile Week in Banff. Tents and other accommodations are being placed there for the use of visiting automobilists. A large attendance of automobilists is expected, and this committee expresses a hope that car owners will show their appreciation by turning out in large numbers from all parts of the province. On Saturday, the day following the convention in Calgary, a club run from Calgary to Banff is being arranged, returning on Sunday. Car owners from many points have already signified their intention of making this run.

The members of the committee are: George Webster, O. N. Gilbert, Royal Cowan, W. O. Helm, A. S. Nimmo (Chairman).

The Reasons for Studebaker's Leadership

STUDEBAKER is supreme in Canada because Studebaker Cars stand up and give the service.

The Series 18 Studebakers are even better than the Series 17.

They are maintaining the leadership the Series 17 established throughout the Dominion.

Because they embody ninety distinct improvements in mechanical construction, convenience and comfort over the Series 17.

Because they offer all the improvements, all the refinements suggested by four years' close study of the performance of 300,000 Studebaker Cars in actual service in every part of the world.

In them Studebaker gives you the QUALITY that stands up and gives service under the hardest tests on Canadian roads.

In them the many economies made possible by vast resources, the savings obtained through the development of steadily improved manufacturing methods and the installation of the latest and best labor saving machinery are turned to your advantage.

That is why Studebaker is able to offer you so good a car at so low a price.

That is why the Studebaker is a most economical car to buy.

It is economical to operate because Studebaker's "made-in-Canada" quality reduces "upkeep" to its lowest possible terms.

It is economical to drive because of great gasoline economy in ratio to power, because of great tire economy in ratio to weight and carrying capacity—Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

It is economical to own, because it brings a very high second-hand value in case of re-sale or trade-in.

For these reasons you owe it to yourself to investigate the Canadian-built Studebaker before you buy a car.

Let us give you a Studebaker demonstration today.

CORN PRICE UP AFTER ATTEMPTS TO CURB SALES

New Records For Season Seen at Chicago—Other Cereals
Follow Suit

Chicago, July 6.—Attempts to curb high prices by stopping all trade in the July delivery of corn resulted today in a general rush to buy the September option and other distant deliveries. The consequence was a fresh jump in values to new high records for the season. Reactions of offerings caused the advance to be rapid, with no sign of a halt until the market was up 3c from yesterday's finish, a rise of 3c since the close on Monday. Reports of urgent export and distillery demand and of virtual exhaustion of country reserve supplies did much to stir up bullish sentiment. Opening prices, which ranged from 4c off to 3 1/2c advance, with September at 155 1/2 to 157 and December at 115 1/2 to 116 1/2, were followed by a slight reaction and then a sharp general upturn. Wheat ascended with corn. The July option especially showed strength, but business continued to have but little volume. After opening 1c to 3 1/2c higher with July at 210 and September at 191 to 192, further gains were made that carried July to 219. Data were firmer at first on account of seaboard buyer. Later, however, leading firms turned to the selling side. Provisions reflected the advance in corn. It was said, too, that shipping call for ribs had improved. Reports were current that recent frosts in Canada had caused losses and that the crop outlook in the Dakotas and Minnesota was less promising than of late, but the market here needed when corn turned down. The close was unsettled 2 1/2c to 3c net higher, with July at 219 and September at 192.

WHEAT FOR MILL SOUGHT AT 'PEG; OFFERINGS LIGHT

Firmer Tendency in Sympathy
With Americans—Oats in Demand

Winnipeg, July 6.—A fair demand for wheat developed today, emanating principally from Canadian millers, but offerings were light and spreads were unchanged from yesterday. The situation shows a firmer tendency in sympathy with the American market, where there has been a bulge on account of stoppage of trading on the July option for corn. This action on the part of the Chicago Board of Trade is reported to be due to the exhaustion of country supplies and the backward condition of the growing crop and the desire of the Government to control existing stocks as a war measure.

There was an active demand for oats early in the session, arising from the demand of shippers who have tonnage to take care of at the lake ports. As soon as this was satisfied business fell off. Offerings were fair. Harley showed a better tone than yesterday, with the market half a cent higher, while flax was featureless and lower. Winnipeg October closed 6 1/2c higher on a fluctuation of 7c. July oats closed 1 1/2c lower, October 1 1/2c and December 2 1/2c lower. Harley was 1c higher for July. Flax was 1/2c lower for July and 1/2c higher for October.

Minneapolis July closed 7c higher and September 5c higher. There was no opening on Winnipeg October wheat up to 10 o'clock. Oats were from unchanged to 1/2c up for July at 7 1/2c to 1 1/2c, October was 1/2c down at 8 1/2c and December was 1/2c down at 8 1/2c. Flax was 1c lower for July at 25c. Minneapolis wheat was 3c up for July at 22 1/2c.

There were 620 cars inspected at Winnipeg, out of which 262 were contract.

GERMAN GUNS SHELL REIMS; WHOLE CITY BEING DESTROYED

French Front, Wednesday, July 4, via London, July 6.—The great and beautiful city of Reims is now being most literally destroyed. For weeks past German batteries have been systematically playing upon it day and night, as though high explosives cost nothing, or a great assault was being prepared. It was reckoned during last week and the week before that, 15,452 shells fell within the city, many of them large calibre, and many containing incendiary stuff. Bombardments and municipal advice notwithstanding, about 5,000 of the former 120,000 inhabitants still cling to their homes.

TOURIST TRAFFIC SLOW IN STARTING NOW COMMENCING

C.P.R. Passenger Chief Comments on Conditions as He Finds Them

Tourist travel over the western divisions of the C.P.R. has been particularly good towards the Rockies and Alaska, according to Geo. A. Walton, general passenger agent of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, in an interview with a representative of the Bulletin, Friday.

The traffic from the prairie provinces has more than offset the slowness of the tourist traffic from the United States. The American traffic, according to Mr. Walton, was delayed owing to war conditions. Information from the company's agents in the United States shows that that traffic has now commenced to move to Canadian points. According to Mr. Walton, many of the tourists journey to the Rockies with a sojourn at Edmonton.

Miss Grace Lusk (top), a normal school teacher at Waukesha, Wis., shot Mrs. David Roberts, wife of a veterinarian with whom she was in love. Among her effects was found a letter to Mrs. Roberts, which she had not mailed. It explained her reason for murder: "You must have known for a long time that your husband's affections had passed from you; that he cared for some one else. That is sufficient annulment of any marriage vow that was ever given. That is the way you respectable folk—good, moral women—do things in order to keep your reputation and live lives of ease."

FORMER WIFE CONGRATULATES HER EX-HUSBAND'S BRIDE

It's all perfectly simple, when explained in the terms of New Thought and the Sixth Sense. At least it was simple enough for Mrs. Margaret Melvor-Tyndall, the fifth wife of Dr. Alvaander J. His last wedding ceremony was the second within a week. The first wedding was declared illegal because he gave his name as Tindall instead of Melvor-Tyndall, so it had to be done all over again. Mrs. Margaret Melvor-Tyndall, wife No. 5, appeared at the wedding supper and congratulated the bride and groom. She says she loves them both.

BRITISH LIEUTENANT GIVES THRILLING DESCRIPTION OF AIR BATTLE WITH GERMAN MACHINES

Fight Began at 11,000 Feet Altitude and Ranged Over Height of From 12,000 to 30,000 Feet—Five British Aeroplanes and 27 German Machines Were Engaged in Spectacular Combat.

The following vivid description of a fight on May 6, between five British aeroplanes and a flotilla of 27 German machines, was written by an English lieutenant in the air services in France in a letter which has just been received in this country:

"It was on Saturday, May 5th, a day of gross haze when there was a haze so thick that you could hardly see the ground from a height of 2,000 ft. Our men had started fairly late in the afternoon while our crippled machine, still belching flames, slid off, with its nose set for home, the German, mortally hit, dropped like a stone.

"It was just retribution. The unwritten laws of this marvelous game of war demanded that the fighter who attacks an enemy in flames. Such an enemy is out of the fight and has trouble enough for a brave man. The German who dived for our burning machine was taking his life in his hands. He was doing an unchivalrous thing and he knew that that knowledge unnerved him so that noon, and at 5 o'clock were well over in enemy country, when, with the sun at their backs, they saw two enemy aircraft flying in the same direction as with the enemy, who made some show of giving fight. It was only a show, however, for as our leading machine drew near the Germans turned and made with all speed for home.

"The tactics suggested that the two enemy machines were only a decoy, intended to turn our fire-strength as far as possible from the base and the objective was soon confirmed. Even as we started to chase the two flying enemies out of the haze and void on he paid the penalty.

"Strangely enough our burning aeroplane got home. I have seen the wreckage with the reserve petrol tank still on board bearing two bullet holes on one side and the other side of the other where the bullets passed out. The whole tank is scorched and crumpled. The flames had burned away the whole central span of the upper plane. The thick rear main spar was charred and burned through and two ribs were completely severed and hanging in the air like broken rods. It set, like a great blazing meteor, it crossed our lines and came to earth.

In Three Formations

"The new arrivals flew in three formations, two of which contained eight machines, and the third contained nine—it is uncertain whether two did not contain nine, but it is better to be on the safe side—making 25 German aeroplanes, all of a uniform fighting type, flying from the west, which now ceased to run away, joined themselves, making a minimum of 25 enemy machines in all.

"One of the enemy fleets, taking advantage of the thick air, had passed behind our little squadron and came at us, as from the direction of our own lines, straight between it and the sun and the clouds, and was seen first to have an enemy flying at you in the late afternoon, when the sun is getting fairly low. The other two fleets came not indeed at its own home, but safe and friendly ground; and as another airman said to me in admiration, 'He made a perfectly topping landing.'

"Meanwhile, the wonderful fight was drawing to a close. The British pilot, Lieutenant D. J. (better known as 'D') machine-gun into an enemy when so close that his wings almost brushed the other's rudder; and the enemy turned turtle clear over on his back, and, spouting out a thick column of black smoke, went down.

"Some of the enemy were already drawn to the ground, men were in no mood to let them go, it is hard to get out of a losing fight than it is to begin it, and before the enemy mob could disentangle itself from the battle two more of their machines had gone to earth—one, his third in the fight, falling to Lieutenant C., and one to from the southeast to northeast. As they approached they spread out so that our men were ringed round with enemies on every side.

"The general order to attack, though never, was hardly needed. Each one of our five, keen as mustards, turned at once for the enemy who was nearest.

"The fight began at about 11,000 ft.; but in the course of the things that followed it ranged anywhere from 3,000 to 12,000, up and down the ladder of heaven. And an extraordinary fact is that, all the while that it went on, the German anti-aircraft guns below kept at work. Usually, as soon as the aeroplanes engage overhead, the 'Archies' are silent 'or fear of hitting the wrong man; and whether the Ger-

Leutnant E.

Lords of the Air Come Home

"Then the last four of our machine, still lords of the air, came home.

"I have seen three of the machines, come in, and alight on the airfield. The two wire, and see the dent in the spar and propeller blade; but what, I think, has amazed me most was the fact that yesterday morning four of the aeroplanes, with the same pilots and observers, had been out again. One had brought home with him some brand new scars from an anti-aircraft gun.

"Of the fate of the others, of course, has spread, and the heroes have been flooded with congratulations. But for their own part they take it all as a bit of their day's work, and it has not interrupted the rhythmical routine and men gunners were drunk will, excitedly, and in a noisy manner, be used as a means of defense, or whether it was that our machines formed so isolated and compact a mass in the heart of the great machinestrom that it seemed still possible to fight as in the old days. At all events, the tumult of the battle was increased by the constant pumping into the tangled mass of shells from the ground.

Men Fought Skillfully

"Primarily, any such general melee inevitably breaks up into a series of individual fights. Formation, 'as it is technically known,' to put it bluntly, has nothing could have surpassed the way in which our men fought. Not one of them allowed himself ever to be cut off and isolated from the rest. Not one seemed to be in any danger of being in imminent danger to turn to his assistance. This is the more remarkable as, with the exception of the Flight Sergeant, no pilot was particularly brave men, with little experience of fighting. Some had only been in ance a fortnight. Yet no veterans could have exceeded these youngsters in coolness and in flying judgment. As for the Flight Commander, he was still a youth, may fairly be called a veteran, for in that battle he reached his 17th German victim.

The actual fighting lasted for a full hour, from 5 to 6 o'clock, an extraordinary time for a dog fight, during all that hour our men fought tooth and nail. And the fight had lasted but a few minutes when we drew first blood, and an enemy machine which Captain A. had attacked went down in flames, with the wings of one side torn away. Then it was Lieut. B's turn. He caught his adversary at close range fairly, and the German aeroplane went down turning over as fell straight down 11,000 ft., leaving home. Again and again, far out over his territory, we fought him with three machines to 10 or a dozen, and hardly ever does he cross our lines, except as a party of three or four, which may slip by our fighting men by hiding behind clouds, and make a sudden raid on one of our observation aeroplanes as it wheels above the battlefield before he can dash for one of our kite balloons."

Fresh

...next, his enemy's machine spinning low the haze, it must have crashed.

 "Then, for a moment, it seemed that our luck was turning. Lieutenant B., engine gave out and he was 'compelled to leave the formation.' It was a single phrase, but what it means is that, ellipsis, and with engine still, it was a drop-ping drop-ping light

"But other eyes were watching. Sergeant C. saw his crippled comrade slipping downward and saw the German diving after. Quick as a flash he followed, and before the German could get to his work the British aeroplane was most touching the tail of his machine."
